PREFACE.

HAD in my first Proposals, annex'd this Narrative to my practical Observations, with an Intention to make them both one Book; but (at the Request of my ever esteem'd Friend, the Revd. Mr. William Guest,) Dr. Corn-wall Fasthwell of Stamford, a very learned ingenious Physician, and humane Gentleman, read them over, whose Candour and good Nature, led him to speak in commendation of my Undertaking, and at the same Time He, as also did many more neibouring Gentlemen, advise me to print them seperately, for these two Reasons; first, they were of opinion, that when this Account of a distress'd unhappy Life, should appear in the World, it would fall into some Hands, that might shew me such Compassion as would the better enable me to publish my medicinal Undertaking, and be a Means to obtain me a greater Number of Subscribers: The second reason was, that these Works together would be too voluminous and expensive for so small a Subscription: Therefore I hope those few, who have subscrib'd to my first Proposals, will upon these Considerations, pardon my making two Books of them. This Account of the material Occurrences of my Life, I would have gladly been excus'd from publishing, but found it unavoidable, fince an Enquiry was lately made by a Gentleman, why a Man of approv'd Knowledge in his Profession, with upwards of thirty Years Practice, should be in adverse Circumstances? Tis not material to tell the Reader who the Gentleman is, that made this Enquiry, and I must beg to be excus'd, as it may give offence. In vindication of myfelf from the many Aspersions, and false Accufations I labour under; confidering the Diffreffes I am reduc'd to, which arise chiefly from Cruelty and Oppression; I should be remise in regard to myfelf, and conduct, as well as the defire every Man ought to have to Truth and Justice, was I not to clear up some suspicious Occurrences in answer to this Enquiry; and I hope the Facts, which I have most exactly represented, are such, as will prove quite satisfactory to those, who have censur'd my Conduct, and blam'd me without a just Cause.

My chief Reason for publishing this Narrative is, that I may convince the World that if my Knowledge in my Profession is deficient, my Industry dustry and Application have not been wanting; and that I have done all that I could possibly do, in my Circumstances, to maintain myself and Family, in that small sphere of Life I am plac'd in, with the greatest Assiduity; and if I have not some Qualifications requisite to make a Man prosperous in this World, yet have I endeavour'd to be as useful as it was in my Power.

This Work doth confift of all the material Occurrences of my Life, from my Birth to this Day; and I shall impartially state Facts, as they really are, and if I err, by charging any Man wrongfully, or omit relating such Wrongs as I myself have been guilty of, when either of these I am accused of, I will obviate them to any one. For this Reason, I think, a Work of this Kind is better to be done during a Man's Life, than afterwards; when Facts may be examin'd into, and all Accusations, Doubts, and Events, (seemingly irreconcileable,) may be made clear and manifest.

nry Of all the Sins that are committed in this World, (if I may be allow'd fuch an Expression in the Eyes of the Sons of Men) there is none comes up to Poverty: Si non maximum Crimen, maximum malum est Paupertas, and this great Evil is not one great Sin, but he that is guilty of this, may be said to be guilty of all. This Evil does not only make a Man the greatest Sinner, but he must of course be the most contemptible, despicable, insignificant silly Mortal A 2 upon upon Earth, as Juvenal expresseth it: Nil habet infelix Paupertas durius in ser quam quod ridiculos Homines facit. It is thought impoffible to be honest, prudent, regular, sober, and skilful in any Profession, if poor; nay so extensive is this fame hateful Malignity, that a poor Man must be a Rogue, a Fool, Irregular, a Drunkard, unskilful in his Profession, and consequently liable to all Manner of Censure and Reproach; unworthy Pity, undeferving Encouragement, expos'd to Infolence, doom'd to Misery and Distress, to dragg on an unhappy Life, till Death removes him beyond the Malice of human Persecution. On the contrary, a Man endow'd with this world's Goods, Riches and Possessions, according to the present prevailing Notion, is likewise endow'd with Honesty, Wisdom, Sobriety, Skill in his Profession. and all Manner of Virtues, entirely without Faults, or if he has any, who can fee them, or dare name them?

As Riches, instead of Charity, now a days, cover a Multitude of Sins, so Poverty obscures all commendable Qualifications and Endowments: and this is not all, for the wisest of the Sons of Men, says, the Rich has many Friends, but the Poor is hated of his Neighbours. There is an Odium that attends Poverty, but Riches gain Love, Esteem, and Adoration. Hard! Often too hard is the Fate of some Poor, who have been born of wealthy Parents, and tenderly brought up, never inured to hard Work, or hard Living, and who by unavoidable Accidents are reduc'd to great Diffress; such unfortunate Poor as these, are of all Men most miserable: For what Hardship can it be to the laborious, who from his Infancy was brought up to hard Labour, or to fuch who have always fared hard, and liv'd upon mean course Diet, to continue what is not only habitual, but natural to them? It can only be grievous to fuch, as I observ'd, who from an Affluence of Fortune, have their Minds, as well as Bodies better cultivated, and thereby are made more sensible of the Misery of their reduc'd Condition: This is not all that adds to the unhappiness of the already enough Unfortunate, they, by the most vulgar wicked Train of Plebeians, are reproach'd, infulted, despis'd, abused and pointed at, as the most hateful of all Sorts of Poor; they look upon fuch a Man with Envy and Contempt, instead of pitying him for being reduc'd to a low, diffres'd Condition; they envy him, because his Birth, his Knowledge, with a more decent Behaviour, the effect of a more liberal Education, (whatever his Circumstances are) continue him still, fomething above them and their Cruelties.

'Tis painful to hear fuch unfortunate Poor ill spoken of, and ill treated. How bitter is this Reply from People in higher Life, (where he hopes for Regard and Encouragement) yes, the Man is allow'd a Man of Knowledge, but he is poor, they they need fay no more, for this comprehends his being guilty of every Vice, and wanting in every thing commendable.

- Bet fince the same wife Man fays, a good Name is better to be defired than great Riches, and as I at this time of Life, fland a bad Chance for the latter, and the Preference he gives to the former doth excite in me an Abhorrence of being thought guilty of great Crimes and Imprudences, as fuch my present Distresses are principally attributed to; as I shall relate, and I hope clear up, to the Satisfaction of every impartial good Perfon; and as for those who doubt the Veracity of any Part of my Relation, they may confute it if they can, knowing where I Exist; (as I can scarce be said to Live;) for I am ready to fatisfie every Doubt, and answer any Objection, and submit the Whole to the Candour of the Good, the Wife, and Unprejudic'd.

In order to remove Surmises, Doubts, Misrepresentations, Censure and Blame, and to make the Reasons plain and obvious; I shall most exactly relate all the material Occurrences and Transactions of my Life, from first to last, with the utmost Impartiality and Truth my Memory will admit of; and shall rather err by saying too little, than trespass by saying too much;
and I shall forbear relating some Facts, as were they exasperated, would darken those who have by Injustice and Cruelty, greatly contributed to the many Difficulties and Hardships, I have

Falsity, in order to excuse myself, and blame others, I desire they would in justice to themselves, and the World, make any such misserpresentation Appear, and I will publickly acknowledge my Guilt, and ask Forgivness; and I think Persons who write their Lives, and publish them in their life Time, are more likely to stick to the Rules of Truth and Justice, than those, who leave them for others to publish, when it is neither in their Power to vindicate what they have related, or contradict what some ill design'd malicious Persons may falsly say, in order to asperse and lessen the Veracity of such a Testimonial.

NARRATIVE

LIFE and DISTRESSES

O F

SIMON MASON, Apothecary.

O U R Author, Simon Mason was Born at Great Gransden in Huntingdonsbire, in the Year 1701 and is Eldest surviving Son of Simon Mason Esq; late of Great Gransden aforesaid, whose Ancestors have liv'd in the same Town posses'd of a good Estate, upwards of three Hundred Years, one of the most antient Families in that County, who originally descended from Pickering Castle in Yorksbire.

lat

My Father being left a Minor, under the care of his Uncle John Mason then an Attorney at St. Ives, he after being Qualified at School for the University, was admitted proper Pensioner of Clare Hall in Cambridge, from whence he took Chambers in Lincolns Inn, and after being call'd to the Bar he return'd to his Seat at Great Gransden, and to his Death practis'd as Barrister at Law. He married Elizabeth, eldest Daughter of Thomas Salmon Cl. Rector of Mepfal in Bedfordsbire, by whom he had seven Sons and fix Daughters, I can't fay what Account his Uncle gave of his Stewardship, while he was Guardian for my Father, though I believe it was a very bad one, as I have often heard my Father relate. However this good Uncle of my Father's was esteem'd an honest Man in great Circumstances, and having no Child, and my Father being his Heir at Law, had no small expectations from him, and in order to make him amends for his Guardianship, and farther to secure his Friendship when his good Uncle John Majon was made General Receiver for Huntindonsbire, he became security to the Government; I can't fay how many Years his Uncle continu'd General Receiver, but he thought proper to break feveral thousand Pounds in the Government's Debt in the latter End of Queen Ann's Reign; upon his Uncle's failing, Messengers were directly fent to take Possession of my Fathers Estate, &c, which they fold to make good his Uncle's Deficiencies, to the Amount of several thousand Pounds; there also was one Colonel Farrer, the other Security whom I believe fuffer'd also after this fatal Miscarriage, his Uncle made a decent Retreat with a modest Revenue of about two-hundred Pounds per Annum into the Fleet, where he lived many Years very genteelly, and I and my Father attended him to the Burial-Ground in Bunhill-Fields, in the Year 1718, but had he been laid there twenty or thirty Years sooner, it would have been better for my Father and his Family.

This fatal Blow by an Extent from the Government to seize and sell so great a Part of my Father's Estate, began the Destruction of a Family, who had liv'd so many Years in Plentiful Fortunes and good Esteem. Here began a Scene of Afflictions, which brought on other unhappy Law disputes that lafted many Years! and fo reduced my Father, having a large Family to support, that he liv'd very little in the Country afterwards; as his chief Dependance was upon his Practice as Council, which obliged him to be mostly in London, where in the Year 1725 he Died of a Pleurify at his Lodgings near the Temple in Fleet-Street, in the thirty-fixth Year of his Age. He was before this an Hearty, Healthy Man, and might have liv'd to this Day had he been properly treated; a short Account of which I shall mention upon an Occasion that happen'd to me at Cambridge, (which, I shall amongst other Circumstances relate in its Place,) I went to London to my Father for Advice, whom I found out of Order, with the Symptoms of a Pleurify, and the next Day, he growing worfe, I ask'd him who was his Physician, he told me Dr. Lewis, who was his old Acquaintance and Co-tempory with him at Clare-Hall, I fent immediately for Dr. Lewis, who came and according to Cuftom, order'd hot Medicines, without bleeding, which he took; the Symptoms encreasing, he Blister'd him, and gave Oyl and Syrups in plenty! More Boluses, and Juleps! But as my Father had no Sweats, no Stool, no Abatement of the Symptoms; I was then but a young Practitioner, yet old enough to disapprove the Doctor's Practice, my Father in a high Fever with an acute Pain in his Side, a difficulty in Breathing, with a fet red Colour in his Face. I address'd my Father in this Manner; Sir, to fland by and fee a Father loft for want of proper Treatment, is what I can't tacitly submit to, without being guilty of the greatest Breach of Duty, which would give me a lafting Concern, was I not, before it is too late I hope, to apprise apprise you of your Danger; your Case requires immediate large bleeding, which has been omitted too long, and something to procure you a Stool or two, and inflead of these hot Medicines, they ought to be cooling diluting Medicines; you may drink cool Tankard, and small Beer if you please, and I have too much reason to fear, unless you are directly treated after this Manner you'll not recover. I tell you my Thoughts as I ought to do, and if you'll give me leave I'll mention them to the Doctor, and if he don't confent to what I propose I shall break in upon Distinction, and take upon me to relieve you: Here I must observe that the little Knowledge I had to early acquir'd in Physick, was chiefly owing to my late valuable Friend Dr. Wallis, then Fellow of Magdalen Colledge, Cambridge, who took no small Pains to improve the imperfect Ideas, I had of the Practice of Physick; but to return, my Father thank'd me, and commended me for my Regard, but answer'd, Simon you are a young Man, your Notions may be just, and seem so to be, but should I die under them, that may give uneafiness to yourfelf and room for others to reflect, fo I think it will be most advisable to pursue the Doctor's Directions, which we did, I told Mr. Barecroft his Apothecary my Sentiments, who told me, if I defir'd it, he wou'd take the Method I propos'd, which he believ'd to be right, but conformable to my Father's Defire forbore, and foon I was an Eye-witness of the Confequence of fuch Treatment, and my Father was interr'd in St. Dunstan's Church Fleet-Street, in the Year 1725.

The Misfortunes that happen'd to my Father were fuch as eight have happen'd to any other Gentleman, he suffer'd by his Uncle, from whom he had had great great Expectations. Had my Father neglected his Wife and numerous Family, and spent his Estate in Luxury and Debauchery, or had he either Gam'd, or Sported it away, he must not only have been reproach'd by the World, but blam'd and censur'd by his Wife and Children: But in justice to his Memory I must affert, he was a great Scholar, an eminent Council, a fober honest religious Man, who fcorn'd in all Circumstances of his Life a mean Action, and abhorr'd a dishonest one, but was ever stedsast to his Truft, he was a loving Husband, and tender Father, the Regard and Compassion he had for the Diffress'd, often engag'd him in Pauper-Causes, which he us'd to support at his own Expence, and at a Time he could not well afford it, but as it was from a Motive of doing Good, I hope he now receives his Reward in Heaven.

I should be remiss in my Duty, to the Memory of fo good a Woman as my Mother liv'd and dy'd, should I in silence pass by her Remains now lying in Great Gransden Church; this good, pious, dutiful Wife, and tender Mother, with a flender Fortune, was reduc'd long to struggle with many Children, which she underwent with the greatest Resignation, and Chearfulness, and often would confess her Troubles were chiefly for her Children who had enter'd upon Difficulties betimes, and none fo foon, and fo great as myself which I have set forth: But should I attempt to speak the just Praises of my deceas'd Mother, I might perhaps be thought to fay too much, I shall therefore only add to the Duty of a good Wife and Mother; that she was friendly and fincere, Charitable and strictly a religious good Christian, fhe bore all Afflictions with chearfulness, and a long Illness with the utmost Patience and Resignation, and agreeable to her Prayers, she was remov'd from this World to a Better, the 8th of September 1742.

My Grand-Father had three Wives, with whom he had good Fortunes, he built a large handsome House, out Houses, with Gardens, Groves, Fish-Ponds, long Rows of Trees leading up to a pleasant large Wood, a very agreeable Place in a good Situation, about fifty measur'd Miles from London, in the Center of several market Towns. I can't say exactly what my Grand-Father dy'd worth, but to the best of my Knowledge 'twas near twenty-thousand Pounds, he left three Daughters whose Fortunes were three-thousand Pounds each, which makes me believe after those Fortunes and other Matters claim'd my Father's Estate (exclusive of Practice) was about six-hundred Pounds per Annum.

I have briefly given the Reader an Account of the Misfortunes of my Father, and the cause of the first Reduction of his Family, I shall only observe that all possible Care was taken to instruct, and soberly to bring up a numerous Family, and besides myself, there are now living three Brothers and sour Sisters who all share my good Wishes and Af-

I continued with my Mother and went to School at Great-Gransden, till I was ten Years, when a good Uncle my God-Father, then a Physician at Bishop-Startford in Hertfordshire, sent for me to that School, where I continued some Years under the Instruction of the learned Dr. Tooke, where I had an Opportunity of being known by several young Gentlemen, who many of them are now Gentlemen of great Worth and Dignity; (who upon reading this Narrative, I hope will be mov'd to compassionate a distress'd School-Fellow;) I study'd at Bishop-Start-

Startford School, till my Uncle ask'd me if I wou'd go to the University of Cambridge and be bred a Physician, or go to London and be bred an Apothecary; but I like other silly Boys, willing to get from School, refus'd going to Cambridge, which to this Day I earnestly lament, but imprudently chose to go Apprentice to an Apothecary in London, and I was soon sent to one Mr. Cornelius a worthy honest Man, and an understanding Apothecary, who then liv'd in Fenchurch-Street in the City of London, and whose Brother lately kept the Rose-tavern without Temple-Bar.

In the Year 1715, I was (at Apothecary's Hall) bound Apprentice to Mr. Ralph Cornelius, he was a very good Master to me, and allowing for some little Inadvertencies of Youth, without Ostentation I was as good an Apprentice, I first endeavour'd to obtain a Knowledge of Simples and their Virtues, next the Art of Composition and making Medicines, and to acquire a compleat Knowledge of Quantity and Quality. And as I advanc'd farther in my Apprentiship I attended the Sick and made the most strict Enquiry into the Nature of Distempers I was then capable of, with the Symptoms that attended and by what Method treated, observing the Effect of Medicines and the Power and Efforts of Nature; and at my leifure Hours read fuch Books as were recommended to me, and as often as I had opportunity I went to St. Thomas's Hospital: Thus I went on with my Master as well as could be wish'd for till the Year 1719. Having serv'd better than half my Apprentiship, my Master gave me leave to go into the Country to see my Relations for a Month, as it is customary for Apprentices so to do: This happen'd in that ever memorable South-Sea Year, when when a Vein of Madness seem'd to run through the Kingdom; and I amongst the rest was willing to get a little Money, which I thought wou'd be very fuitable at that Time, to cut a Figure with in the Country. South-Sea Stock was then at one-hundred per Cent. and it was very difficult to get Subscriptions. Sir John Fellows and Charles Joy, Elg; were Governors, both whose Families were Patients to my Master; a Gentleman desirous of getting a Subscription, as he knew I stood well in the Favour of these Governors, offer'd me one-hundred Guineas, to procure him a Subscription of five-hundred Pounds, for which I apply'd to Mr. Joy, who readily granted it me, and I was paid one-hundred Guineas as a Premium for procuring him a Subscription of fivehundred Pounds: This I thought was a fine Sum to equip a young Fellow to cut a Flash with, in the Country, though in the first Place I pay'd all that had any demands upon me, and fent my Mother a Prefent, telling her I should soon pay her a Visit; I went and bought me a fine Hunter in Smith-Field, and dreft me like a young 'Squire, and fet off for a Months Pleafure, which was so agreeable after four Years close Confinement that made me have a great Defire to flay a little longer; I accordingly took a ride to London to wait on my Master, to beg the Indulgence of another Month, and told him there was a young Fellow of my Acquaintance just out of his Time, who would, with his leave, supply my Place during my stay in the Country, for which I would fatisfy him: My Master was so Indulgent to give me leave to flay another Month, but I meeting with fuch good usage and delightful sport at hunting, (which I naturally too much lov'd,) flay'd in the Country fix Months instead of two, and then return'd return'd to my Duty, paid my Journeyman, and afterwards fluck close to Bufiness.

After my return Mrs. Cornelius, as an Instance of her good Wishes for my Welfare, would have brought a Match about, betwixt me and Miss Westron, an only Daughter of a wealthy Haberdasher of imall Wares next Door but one to us. This young Gentlewoman as never being from Home was wanting in those Accomplishments her Fortune requir'd, and her Charms were chiefly in her Father's long Baggs, who was computed to be a twenty-thousand Pound Man. My good Mistress in order to my carrying on an Amour got a Milk-woman into the Secret, where I was to meet Miss to drink Sillabub; and I believe had I follow'd the Advise my Mistress gave me by a close Pursuit of my Addresses I should have fucceeded; but the principal Reason of my Indifference was, a Pretty young Lass Apprentice to my Namesake a Milliner at the Queen's Head in Lombard-Street, with whom I was much Captivated, and she really was a well bred, sober, genteel young Woman, whose Accomplishments and Person, were equally engaging: She was the Daughter of a reputable Attorney in the City, who had left a Widow, one Son and three Daughters, the Widow was much of a Gentlewoman, whom I visited several times, and was genteelly treated; I kept Company some time with her Daughter, but never brought matters to a Promise, we were not so much in a hurry, being both Apprentices, and her Mother had too much Discretion to forward our Destruction, and she knew too that I should as well as her Daughter forfeit not only our Indentures, but our Freedom of the City. 1 confulted my Master, who advised me not to marry, and told me the ill Consequences. dislike to Miss Nanny Stacey, but I was to consider that it was absolutely Necessary to have a Fortune of one Side; indeed says he, was you to marry Miss Westron, neither the Remainder of your Apprentiship, or Freedom would be of any Consideration; such a Fortune would make you Independant of Business, & and upon his Advice I dropt my Amour, and this young agreeable Gentlewoman soon met with a good Husband of a handsome Fortune, who kept his Coach, which I hopessherides in to this Day.

By this Time I had ferv'd fix Years, and was turn'd of one and twenty, and not to be vain was allow'd to have made a good Progress in the Art of my Profession; had a great deal of Favour shewn me at Home and Abroad, respected by all our Patients; and my Master having a junior Apprentice, and a Labourer, the Chief of my Bufiness was to visit the Patients, and where no Physician was employ'd, I (by the Request of my Master) directed most of the Medicines our Patients took; my Master shew'd me the greater Regard, as he was acquainted with my Father, and knew the great Misfortunes that had lately befell his Family. Befides eating at his Table and having an handsome Room to myself, when other Apprentices lay under the Compter; he also gave me a Priviledge he never did to any Apprentice before, for my diligence and care of his Business; he told me as I was acquainted with many young Gentlemen, if any of them should have occasion for my Affistance in the venereal Way, I might Practice, and make what Advantage I could, only keeping an Account of what Medicines I gave, and paying him prime Cost. This Indulgence I thankfully accepted, and I shall not enlarge should I say, I made near near fifty Pounds a Year of it; this kept me handfomly in Cloths and pocket Money. Amongst my Patients, one in particular was a Master Sadler, in the Neighbourhood, whom I had a Demand on for five Guineas, and he had the honefty to refuse paying me, thinking I acted in a clandestine Manner unknown to my Mafter, and thought I neither could or dar'd demand any Pay; I told my Mafter the Affair, he bid me go to an Officer of the Poultry-Compter, and tell him to arrest such a Man in his Name; (this was before l'ersons were oblig'd to fwear to their Debts before they cou'd fue for them,) accordingly I did, and the Officer had got my Patient in the Evening at the Mitre-tavern in Fenchurch-Street; my Master being sent for, the Sadler ask'd how he came to arrest him for a Debt he never contracted, neither did he owe him any Thing, upon that or any other Account, my Master reply'd, if he did not think proper to apply to him, he had to his Man, which was the fame Thing, and he should infift upon being pay'd; here my Patient that intended to have bit me, was oblig'd to pay the five Guineas with Charges and an handsome Treat to keep the affair a Secret, and my Master gave me the Money that very Night.

Such favours as these I had shewn me, and I us'd my best endeavours to make a suitable Return by a constant assiduity in his Business, which I can safely aver I did as well in his Absence as when he was at Home. Indeed the last Year of my Time after the Business of the Day was over, I us'd in an Evening to go to the Cosfee-House where I met with my Acquaintance, and afterwards adjourn'd to the Castle-tavern in Lombard-Street, to spend an Hour or two, but never went out 'till Business was taken care of, and then, never without leaving word where I went to, as I was liable to be wanted at any Time; but one Night happening to flay too late, my Mafter fat up, in order to rebuke me, and when I came home, he ask'd why I flay'd fo long and kept the Family up; I having had a Glass too much, told him I left word where I was, and if I had been wanted I should have come sooner, had I been sent for; this Answer put my Master in a Passion and so exasperated him that he struck me, I told him I thought I was too big to be beat, and as he never attempted it before, I should not submit to it now, which provok'd him to repeat his Blows: I turn'd by his Cane, and caught him by the Collar and kick'd up his Heels, but never struck him, my Mistress and the Servants came and parted us, and I was very much concern'd at this unlucky Fray.

The next Morning when he came into the Shop, he told me I must go before the Chamberlain for beating him, as he faid; Sir, give me leave to speak with you first, as we never before quarrell'd, and I hope never shall again, and you know very well Sir, that I have hitherto behav'd as I ought to you, and I am also sensible of your Favours and Indulgence, therefore I think it will be most advisable to take no farther Notice but to drop it? No he reply'd, he'd make an example of me; nay Sir, if that's the Case you must, but I wou'd have you consider one Thing; confider what Sir, why that you are pretty much in the Country, and then the Bufiness is intirely left to my care, which you never found neglected in your Absence, nor shall it yet, but if you do expose me by going before the Chamberlain, I nevertheless will take all the Care I can of your Patients, but I never will give one penny-worth of Phyfick

Physick more than I think they absolutely stand in need of; this gave a turn to his Passion, he dropt the Assair, and we continu'd in good friendship for some time.

Another unlucky Circumstance soon after happen'd which parted me from my Master after I had serv'd almost seven Years.

My Mafter had a Patient a Dyer in Southwark, whose Family were very intimate with my Master and his; this fame Dyer had a Daughter, I had fixed my Affections on, after my other two love intrigues; as to the others, one of them had Money, and no other Charms, the last had all Charms but no Money, but this had both; I had been acquainted with her by coming to visit Mr. Cornelius's Family five or fix Years, and she was a sweet temper'd agreeable Girl about fixteen and likely to make a fine Woman. When her Parents discover'd my Inclinations to their Daughter, I had what encouragement I could defire, all the Objection was, their Daughter was too young, but two or three Years hence, if we should like each other they should be very agreeable to it, but neither Miss nor myself were willing to trust the uncertain event of fo long a Time, and we had at last brought the Parents to consent.

My Master and Mistress Cornelius both approv'd of this Affair very well, till they saw all Parties in good Earnest, when they began to think such a Match would interfere with their Interest, as they were not only liable to lose Mr. Cole's Business, but several more Families related to them, should I matry Miss Cole and settle in Town. These considerations of my Master's were very just, and when interest is at stake, what friendship will over balance it? and as'twas my Master's interest to break off this Engagement, it quite broke off all friendship betwixt us, and we parted.

There was an Apothecary in the same Street, whose Name was Clarke, to whom I was well known, I went directly and contracted to serve him as a Journeyman, before I was legally discharg'd from Mr. Cornelius. This was a wrong Step in me, and Mr. Clarke should have known better, and have first talk'd with my Master Cornelius before he had contracted with me, and in all probability matters wou'd have been accommodated, and I had return'd and stay'd my time with Mr. Cornelius as I ought, 'tis certainly very imprudent and unfair, for one Man to encourage another Man's Apprentice: however, Mr. Clarke and I contracted, and I liv'd with him till after playing with the Bait, I at last was catch'd in earnest.

Mr. Clarke was an ingenious Man and had a good Deal of Business, but he lov'd his Glass, and was not a little Negligent, and wanted fome Person that was capable and diligent: He had a very pretty, fober Youth Apprentice, whose genius and early Inclinations to diligence, join'd to a Capacity which promis'd his becoming what he now really is, a very ingenious Man, and an eminent Apothecary, whose Circumstances by a prudent Occonomy are equal to his Accomplishments, whose Name is Evans, and lives now in Doctors-Commons: As I before faid, Mr. Clarke wanted fome Person capable of attending his Business, which I believe I did to his Satisfaction and his Patients, during the Time I liv'd with him. Amongst other Patients I was sent for to see one Mr. Bently's Son, who was then at Mr. Pemberton's, at the Sign of the Coach and Horses in Northumberlandberland- Ally in Fenchurch-Street; this Mr. Pemberton had (some few Years before) married the Wife of Robert Hull who kept the same House and livery Stables thereunto belonging, and left a Widow with one Son and four Daughters, the Eldeft was married, the Son and other three were at home, pretty, modest, sober young Women; and one in particular greatly took my Fancy, and by my repeated visits to my Patients, I contracted such a liking to her, that I ask'd her Father-in-law if he would befrow his Daughter upon me, I found encouragement enough from all Parties, and as my Master Clarke had been making overtures of partnership to me, in case I would advance three-hundred Pounds, I told the Father and Mother, I lik'd their Daughter fo well, if they would give me three-hundred Pounds, (for which Sum Mr. Clarke wou'd take me into Partnership,) I would gladly marry their Daughter; I receiv'd no punctual Answer, but they gave me reasons to expect great matters, by Money and Board, &c. Mr. Clarke was conffantly every Evening at the Mitre-tavern in Dukes-Place near Aldgate, and about eight or nine, if I was not with him before, he would fend for me, where we commonly fupp'd and drank a Glass together: I had told him before that I had feen a young Woman at fuch an House, and ask'd him after their Circumstances, and that I had fome conversation with her Father and Mother, and told him what had pass'd betwixt us, and that they feem'd to like my proposals, but could not get them to any certainty as yet. Mr. Clarke affur'd me they were People of good Worth, and that I might depend upon their giving me threehundred Pounds to come into partnership; but says he, it will chiefly depend upon what Character I fhall shall give you, which must be to your Advantage, and accordingly the next Day they did enquire after me, and at Night as usual I went to him at the Mitre, when he acquainted me what he had faid to Mr. Pemberton, and that he was quite fatisfied with it, and I need not fear but he would advance the Money requir'd and I will directly take you in Partners. I told him again I had been there and talk'd farther upon the Subject and found no difficulty in carrying my Point, could I be fecure of the Money. God knows what Clarke's intention was, when he told me, you may depend upon the Money and rely on my Promife, so you have nothing to do but to get married. Though Mr. Clarke had feemingly great Business, yet a good deal of it was amongst the poorer Sort of Jews, who took advantage of his Indolence, and feldom paid him any Thing, and those who could, he neglected giving Bills to, and by one mifmanagement or another he was pretty much put to it, which makes me think now, could he have got money of me or any other Person 'twas no matter of concern of his, how he got it, or what they fuffer'd: And I, an unthinking young Fellow very much inamour'd and fond of being Master, what with old Pemberton's Promises and Clarke's Affurances, in fix Weeks, unknown to any Relation contracted Matrimony; and here began an inceffant Scene of Misery from October the 4th 1722, to October 1754.

In a few Days I was too much convinc'd what must be the unhappy Consequence of so rash and irretrievable an Action: God knows I had only five Pounds I borrow'd of a Distillers Man to purchase a Licence and to pay for the Celebration of these happy Nuptials, and after a wedding Dinner at the Swan at Chelsea, my Stock was greatly exhausted, and instead of three-hundred Pounds not one Farthing, a Dinner or two I was favour'd with, when I foon discover'd a coolness. My new Mother first began with her dislike to my tye-Wigg and Ruffles; the thought they were too grand for her Son, and indeed, I as foon thought they did look too grand for my new Parents; I told good Madam Pemberton, Ruffles were what I ever wore, and most of our Profession did tye-Wiggs, as for me, I wore them most Part of my Apprentiship; but what I understood by this pious old Lady, she and her confort were hatching a diflike in order to excuse themselves from their Promises, and soon my good Father-in-Law told me, he heard I did not stay my Time quite out with Mr. Cornelius, I told him that I thought Mr. Clarke had given him an Account of that, as I flay'd the Remainder with him: Another time he told me he heard I ow'd a great deal of Money; which I told him was absolutely false, and defired he wou'd produce the Persons I ow'd it to, or the Person who told him I did owe Money, for I do folemnly declare, to the best of my Memory, besides the five Pounds borrow'd to be marry'd with, I did not owe ten more in all the World, which was but a trifle to a Man who had marry'd a Fortune, and was directly going into Business: Another thing more false than the other two, was, he told me that I had a baftard Child, which was kept at four Shillings per Week, which, as God knows the Secrets of all Men, is as false, as God is true: I never arriv'd at that honour: And lastly, he and the good old Woman both pretended.

pretended, I marry'd against their consent and unknown to them. Very righteous indeed! My valuable Friend Clarke went with me to Doctors-Commons for a Licence to compleat my Ruin; but upon the Proctor's being inform'd fhe had' a Father and Mother living and in Town, they would not grant us a Licence, unless one or both of them came, and for fear one was not sufficient, they both came to Dollars-Commons to attest their consent and approbation, and then I had the Materials of Destruction deliver'd to me, and the next Morning the good old People accompanied us to a Church adjoining to little More-Gate, where the old Gentleman bestowed his Daughter upon me, by giving her away, and my Mother-in-Law flood by; after the Ceremony was over, we all adjourn'd to a Tavern and Breakfafted, and at Noon I was favour'd with my new Father and Mother's company to dine with us at the Swan at Chelsea, tho' they, nor any one else offer'd to pay one Penny; and when I return'd to a Lodging the old Woman had procur'd for us in Goodmansfields, I had not fo much as one Shilling to give the Drums; now whether or no I stole my Wife, I leave to Judgment.

In about a Week or ten Days time, having no Money, no Friendship, out of Business, and the thoughts of partnership quite laid a-side, I was oblig'd to take my leave of my young Spouse, committing her to the Care of her Father and Mother; I then made a visit to mine. The short Time of Courtship, at most six Weeks, and only a Week or ten Days matrimony, had made no great impressions upon the Mind of my young Wise; neither were the matrimonial Engagements equal equal to the Admonitions of so good a Mother, that parting with a Husband was a Matter of Indifferency.

In October 1722, I went to Gransden to visit my Parents, who were greatly surpris'd to see me, and more so as I walk'd it; I told my Mother the whole Affair, who was greatly astonish'd and concern'd, I told her I hop'd she wou'd pardon me, for 'twas in obedience to her Commands, who often affur'd me, if I had ever any wicked commerce with the Girls, I should certainly go to the Devil; and I have often spoke of it, not only to my Mother, but to many more, that I marry'd in order to escape going to the Devil, but have had a Life little inferior to it.

My Mother being one of the best temper'd compassionate Women in the World, wrote a Letter to her new Sister Pemberton, to invite her Daughter also to Gransden, who came, and we both stay'd there near a Twelvemonth, where my Wise met with quite different treatment than what I ever had from any of her Relations: My sondness and my Relations kindness, were made but a bad use of, for my Wise thought all adoration was due to her amiable Person, which exceeded both Fortune, Education and Family; and sond soldiscover'd a Spirit, which by indulgence and sondness, was greatly improv'd.

By this time I had learnt (but not from my Wife) that her Mother (before she marry'd Roger Pemberton,) made a Will, and gave each of her Children a Fortune of forty Pounds to be paid upon the Day of Marriage, or at the Age of one and twenty; which I soon inform'd Mr. Pemberton of, and that I expected my Wise's Fortune, which he knew he could not evade, whatever he could his Promise; and this demand brought Master Pemberton to Gransden, and he told me I should have the Money, but hop'd I would put myfelf into Business with it, and after a Day or two's flay at Gransden, we went to visit my Brother, an Attorney at Newbort-Pagnell, to confult of a proper Place to fix in, which was Stoney-Stratford; we did not then go to Stoney-Stratford, but Master Pemberton return'd to London, leaving me and my Wife at my Brother's with two Guineas in Part of Payment.

Pemberton upon his return to London, went to my late Master Mr. Cornelius, who, as well as Clarke, gave me a good Character, and told him I understood my Business exceeding well, but he faid he fear'd I had married too foon, unless I had married better: However Master Pemberton, defir'd he wou'd fend me fome Medicines, fuch as he thought I should want, and as many as he could afford for ten or twelve Pounds, which he accordingly did, and the old Gentleman foon made another visit into the Country, and we took a House at Stony-Stratford; and there I a young Fellow, and a perfect Stranger, fet of with ten or twelve Pounds Stock, without one Shilling in my Pocket; I had employ'd one John Forfitt, who made me a Compter, some Shelves, Drawers, &c, and painting them likewise, for which he charg'd me nine Pounds fome odd Shillings.

Notwithstanding my slender setting off, I got some Business, and I shou'd have had a retail Trade, but I had no Druggs to fell; I went to London to receive the Remainder of my Wifes Fortune, to pay Forfitt and to buy some Druggs; when I went to my Father-in-law, he feem'd to be very civil, having a Point to carry, accordingly in the Evening, he fent for Mr. Burkin, a School-Master in the Neighbourhood, and after my assenting to all Pemberton's demands and expences in the Country, which he charg'd to me, and the five Pounds I borrow'd to be married with, and Mr. Cornelius's twelve Pounds, and two Guineas lest me at Newport-Pagnell, I had not above five Pounds to receive; and after I had sign'd the Acquittance, he would neither give nor lend me one Farthing. This was a small Sum to buy Druggs with, and to return home, and to live upon till I could make some return by Business.

The next Day, I meeting one Mr. Apthorp, an Apothecary of Potton in Bedfordsbire, told him what delemma I had plung'd myself into: This Mr. Apthorp, was my Uncle; he married my Fathers Sifter, with whom he had three-thoufand Pounds; another maiden Sifter who boarded with him, was my God-mother, and she at her Death left her Fortune of three-thousand Pounds, to me, my Brothers and Sifters, and I being her God-son, she left me fifty Pounds to put me out Apprentice with, and five-hundred Pounds to fet me up, if I was put to business, if not, the same Sum to be paid when I came of Age, if educated at the University: But this Mr. Apthorp thought it wou'd be a pretty Addition to his Wifes Fortune, and the Will he pretended was loft, whereby his Wife being Heir at Law, he fecur'd the deceas'd Sifter's Fortune for his own proper Use; and here I was defrauded of five-hundred and fifty Pounds: But to return; this good Uncle of mine told me he could recommend me to a Druggift, who should give me what Credit I requir'd, and appointed my meeting him that Evening, at Mr. Wackett's, a Druggist on Snow-Hill, I met him there, and we, with Mr. Wackett went to the Fountain-tavern against St. Sepulchers Church, where we spent the Evening together, and I gave Mr. Wackett an Order for about twelve Pounds worth of Druggs, which he fent to Stoney-Stratford, which Place I fet out for the next Morning. Upon my return home, being very glad I had got a little Money, and a supply of Druggs. I was in hopes, with frugality and diligence they would support us till better times; but as I was lately mentioning fome Carpenters Work, and painting being done by John Forfitt, and having fome talk with him about a Board being put up over my Door, with my Name, Profession, from London, &c. He, whilst I was gone to London made a fine Board, far exceeding my Directions, and fix'd it up over my Door, and cunningly, with this additional Charge, he made his demands up ten Pounds, for which Sum, he had fent for a Writ, while I was gone to get the Money to pay him, and arrested me, the very Day I return'd from London; to this Arrest I gave bail, and directly went to London to acquaint my Father-in-law about it, and also to let Mr. Wackett know, least he should hear of it more to my disadvantage and arrest me too; but I could obtain no relief from Master Pemberton.

I went then to acquaint Mr. Wackett with this unkind Treatment, who thought I was hardly us'd, and as I had acted fo farely with him, he would do me all the Service in his Power, and in the Evening we met at the Fountain-tavern, lit and he brought his Father with him, who was a wealthy Farrier in Coleman-Street. After fome discourse, I mention'd whose Daughter I had married, and that I could get no relief from that Quarter, Mr. Wackett of Coleman-Street, told me, he was well acquainted with Mr. Pemberton, and knew him when he was Coachman to Mr. Tryon, a Merchant in Lime-Street, and was pleas'd to think it was in his Power to be of use to me with Pemberton, and promis'd that the next Morning he would apply to him, and defir'd that I with his Son the Druggist would come the next Evening to fup with him, and hear the Event of his Application: The next Night, according to appointment I went to supper at old Mr. Wackett's, and as foon as I fat down, inflead of a Supper, he introduc'd two Bailiffs, which took me directly to a spunging House, in Grocers-Alley, Cheapfide, where I was kept close confin'd, till I fent to Stoney-Stratford for the Druggs, which were return'd by the Waggon, they never being fo much as unpack'd, and I paid both carriage to and from Stoney-Stratford, and a great Expence at the spunging House before I was discharg'd.

Tis too common and too cruel, for Perfons whose Pride won't suffer them to own that they are not able to do what they engage and ought to do; but in order to evade justice, and excuse their cruelties, load Persons with such Odiums they deserve not, but often quite the reverse, which frequently prevents others doing even the common Offices of Humanity; and thus was I treated betwixt the Farrier and Coachman, which entirely demolish'd me at Stoney-Stratford; I ordered the Remains of my Shop, to be fold to pay Forfitt his cruel unjust Demand and Expences; and my Wife return'd to London, and I went to make a second Visit at Gransden.

My Father having an Intimacy with his Brother Council, the Recorder of Cambridge, gave me a Letter of Credentials to him, who recommended me to Mr. Casborn an Apothecary at Cambridge, with whom I covenanted as a Journeyman, in which capacity the confequences will prove my Behaviour. The first unlucky Accident to interrupt my quiet was, a Wigg I ow'd a Barber in Town for, it being but a small Demand; this Barber transfer'd his Debt to an Attorney, who arrested me without any Notice, and sent me to Cambridge Castle: (it seems Attorneys have an Indulgence to hold Clients to bail for small Sums.) I did not give bail to this arrest, as I could not imagine who the Writ came from, for I could fwear I did not owe ten Pounds to any Man; unless my Wife's Relations had trump'd up a Demand for my Wife's lying-in, who now had brought forth her first born, my Son and Heir.

As foon as I discover'd, who had sent me to Goal, I sent to my Father and gave him an Account of the Cause of my Consinement; he directly wrote to Mr. Serjant Not, who quickly made the Lawyer glad to release me, and the Tonsor to make me a Present of the Wigg, and pay all Charges. Being sent to Goal did me some discredit, but was soon remov'd when the true Cause was known, and I return'd to Mr. Casborn, whose Business I attended with the utmost Diligence and Fidelity to the great Satisfaction of his Patients, as well as himself.

Mr.

Mr. Casborn had, befides good Bufiness, a very handsome Estate that excluded him from so strict an application as those who have business only to depend on. He was an understanding facetious Man, lov'd his Glass, and kept a good deal of Company that engag'd him much from home, I have known him four or five Days together at the Tunns-tavern without once coming home. The Reception I met with from his Patients, particularly the Gentlemen of the University, gave him a greater opportunity to indulge. One After-noon he fent for me to the Tunns, and after a Glass or two, told me, he had fomething to offer, which he believ'd would be both agreeable to my Inclinations and Interest; I answer'd, I should be glad to embrace any offer confiftent with his Pleasure, and my own Interest: He then said, you are a young Fellow and well Qualified, and your behaviour has gain'd you a general good opinion in the University, so that I am seldom sent for to visit any Gentleman that is sick, but they all fend for you, which I am well pleas'd at, as I had rather be excus'd and take my Glass; you know my Business, and if you like it, I will give it over, and put you into it, I thank'd him and faid I wou'd gladly accept his kind offer, he faid you know I have a very good Estate, (I believe it was worth better than two-hundred Pounds per Annum;) which will maintain me, and my two youngest Daughters, and as for Nanny (who was an agreeable young Gentlewoman, and at that time the Toast of the University) I will (with my Shop, Bufiness, Houshold-Goods and an handsome Sum in your Pocket,) make you a Present of; (no one at Cambridge knew I was then married)

I thank'd him very kindly and told him, it was a favour I no ways merited, 'twas an offer far exceeding what I could expect, but I would most gladly accept it, was it in my Power; (and here I curs'd my fate.) In your Power fays he; what are you engag'd then? Yes too far, to be so happy as you and your Daughter wou'd make me, for really Sir to undeceive you I am married; married says he! then you are ruin'd. I am so or else I shou'd not have been your humble Servant.

This offer made too late ferv'd only to augment my troubles; to think my complying with my Master Clarke's advice, should prevent my embracing this most agreeable advantageous offer of Mr. Casborne; however, we spent the Evening together in good friendship, and I continued his Servant upwards of a Year, during which, Mr. Casborn had several times propos'd my being Partner; but as some Gentlemen advis'd me to the contrary, I declin'd accepting this Proposal.

Some Gentlemen who knew what had pass'd betwixt Mr. Cashorn and myfelf, were concern'd that it was out of my Power to accept his kind offer, which they all approv'd, and as I had now discover'd I had already a Wife in London, they thought it wou'd be more agreeable to have her with me, they therefore advis'd me to fend up; I told 'em that I wou'd gladly do, but that it was not in my Power, I was answer'd that they believ'd fome Money might be advanc'd to affift me in fettling, and my two chief Friends were Dr. Warren, then Fellow of Emanuel College, and Mr. Warham, Fellow of Fesus, both pupil Mongers; besides many more Gentlemen, some Fellows of Colleges, some Students that were my School13

School-fellows at Bishop-Startford: And by the advice and Promifes of these Gentlemen and the affiftance of Dr. Warren and Mr. Warham; I took an House in Bridge-Street, which was in the Year 1725, when that worthy good Gentleman Mr. Warham, (whom I hope is now living and well at Swavefy in Cambridgeshire,) knowing that the Reverend Dr. Lunn, Arch-Deacon of Huntingdon, and then Proctor of Elfworth in Cambridgelbire, was my Uncle by marrying my Father's Sifter, was fo kind to wait on him with fome Recommendations of me, and inform'd him, that he and many more Gentlemen of the University were inclin'd to affift me in settling, and to promote me in Business: The Doctor thank'd him for his good intentions, and told him he intended to bring up his youngest Son an Apothecary, and he had rather put him Apprentice to me, than any one, which he did as foon as I was fix'd in my Shop, and gave me great encouragement; Mr. Warham return'd overjoy'd to think how favourable all circumftances promis'd in my behalf.

There was one Stukes a Brazier next Door to Mr. Casborn's, whom I was very intimate with; he hearing I was going to fettle, desir'd he might serve me with what Goods I should want in his Way, and farther desir'd he might recommend a Druggist to me, who was a very honest Man, and whose Name was Holdgate, and liv'd in Bishopf-gate-Street; when I went to London to buy Potts and Glasses and other materials, I went to Mr. Holdgate, who had receiv'd intelligence from Stukes of my coming, he receiv'd me with all civility, and I gave him an Order for Druggs &c, which he fent the same Week to Cambridge.

I also went to see my Wise and Child, and her Relations, who upon perceiving this Turn of Affairs were very glad to see me, and after a short Stay I return'd to Cambridge, and sitted up my Shop, and as soon as my House was furnish'd, I sent for my Wise and Child. Dr. Lunn bound his Son Apprentice to me, and I got very good Business. Stukes did not consider that by obliging me, he disoblig'd his Wise's Apothecary Lardener, who seeing me thrive and creep in upon his business, attack'd the weaker Vessel in order to put a stop to the promissing Prospect I had of well-doing: I was daily getting ground, and went on very well, not suspecting what was contriving in order to Destroy me.

One Evening my Friend Stukes came to ask me to spend an Hour with him, when he began with feeming friendship to tell me, he thought tho' I met with Encouragement, yet for want of Money, till I could make returns by my Business, he imagin'd I must be a little put to it: For says he, those Gentlemen who affisted you, they by fettling of their Bills, as they become due must make it a little straight with you, and there must be Money to support your Credit, and keep House with, and to pay a few small demands, naming one Chambers a Linnen-Draper and some few others: And fays Stukes, I will advance you some Money to fatisfie these demands, and you shall take time and pay me as you can with conveniency. I thank'd him for his kind offer, told him what money I ow'd I was not press'd for, and that I should be able in a short Time to pay; however, says he, the fooner fooner you pay People the better, you'll establish yourfelf; we will go and pay Mr. Chambers for the Sheets and table Linnen this Evening, which accordingly we did, and parted, promifing to meet the next Evening at the Mitre-tavern in order to have fome more money; according to his defire the next Evening we met, and he brought one Mr. Pyke an Attorney, to fill up the Bond for the Money. He (in order better to carry on his Defign besides paying the Night before seven Pounds to Chambers,) advanc'd feven Guineas more, and then I executed the Bond, and he promis'd me I should have Money at any Time when I wanted it: I must own Mr. Pyke his Attorney, acted like an honest Man; he faw I was quite ignorant of what I was doing, he faid to Stukes, I think it is quite right Mr. Mason should be acquainted with the Nature of this Bond, Stukes reply'd, yes, pray do Mr. Pyke; then Mr. Pyke told me (tho' after I had fign'd) by these writings, you give Mr. Stukes a Power to take possession, or sell and dispose of all your Effects when he pleaseth, without being accountable to you; Stikes fays yes, this is Matter of Form, and to put it into my Power to prevent any body else hurting you. As Stukes had before acted fo friendly, I could not mistrust he had any other view; I faid to him, Mr. Stukes, you do this to keep up my Credit, and in case I die foon, that you may be fecure, for as to preventing any ones hurting me 'tis not in the Power of any one, belides Mr. Greaves the Joiner who has not yet done his Work, and Mr. Holdgate, the Druggist you recommended me to, whose demand is not of above eight Months standing, and his own offer was to give me a twelvemonths

Credit, and afterwards one order under another. No, Stukes reply'd, I don't apprehend you are in any Danger, but your Wife is going to lie in. and you'll have occasion for money, and you need not apply for any credit, I will let you have money as you shall require; otherwise you'll be oblig'd to ask your Patients for money too foon, which will be a hinderance to your Business; and upon these afforances of his good Intentions we parted.

The next Morning I was not quite fatisfied, tho' I could not mistrust he had any Design to hurt me then, yet if afterwards he should take any dislike, I found I had given him a Power to destroy me, which he did.

In three or four Days after, my Wife was brought to bed, and in a fortnight I had my Daughter baptiz'd, and Dr. Sandys, and Dr. Warren and a Gentlewoman from London, with one of my Sifters were Responcers. We had a good deal of Company, and spent the Evening very merrily: But the very next Morning, Stukes brought an Execution into my House, and turn'd us out of Possession, which he had no Power to do, and cruelly (when my Wife had lain-in but a fortnight,) ftript us of every individual Thing, and left us not a Bed to lie on. He, (before I had given him this Bond and Judgment,) had got a young Fellow ready to take the House and Shop, to whom he fold them, notwithstanding all his base Pretensions to me: And thus was I ferv'd by my false Friend Stukes; destroy'd when in a prosperous Way, stript and turn'd with a Wife and two young Children into the Street.

I went directly to London to my Father (whom I found taken ill of a Pleurify, of which he-died, as I have already given an Account of) and told him the whole Affair, who faid as foon as it pleased God he got well again, he wou'd oblige Stukes to do me justice; but as he then died, I only had the satisfaction of shewing my last duty to a tender Parent; who if he had liv'd, wou'd have made an Example of Stukes, but as it pleas'd God he did not, Stukes escap'd unpunish'd and I was ruin'd without redress.

died:

The University according to their wonted goodness, and compassion, thro' the Intercession of Mr. Murden then Minister of St. Clements-Parish. where I liv'd and Fellow of Sidney-College, together with Mr. Lewis, Fellow of Fesus-College, rais'd me a Contribution of upwards of twenty Pounds, which they, and the rest of my Contributors shall have the grateful Acknowledgements of my latest Breath. With this Assistance, I took a little House in the same Parish, and fitted up a Shop; but here I must do justice to my Wife's Father, (whom I went to fee during the Time I attended my own Father in his illness,) who came to Cambridge with me and seeing the ill-treatment I had met with, he gave me an Order upon one Mr. Saunders, in the Country for ten Pounds, which Money I had, and thank him for it.

The very Day I had got my little Shop in order, and a little Business by the encouragement of a sew Friends, I was Arrested by Mr. Fleming a Tobacconist, for Tobacco I had of him, which was but lately deliver'd, which Stukes sold with my other Goods. This Arrest sent me to Goal, where I was confin'd a Month, until Mr. Fleming was inform'd of my cruel Ufage, and then he set me at Liberty; but this sending me to Goal was a satal Circumstance, it lost me those sew Friends I had lest, so that my Business dwindled away to nothing; Mr. Warbam being gone to a College-living, and Dr. Warren to practice Physick, at St. Edmond's Bury. That after our Starving three or sour Years, and greatly reduc'd, having now sour Children, tho' one soon after died; my Wise was oblig'd to return to London, with two Children, I sent one to my Mother, and I with my Potts and Glasses, went to Cottenham in Cambridgeshire, with one half Guinea, to seek my Fortune.

I soon got some Business, and my Success recommended me to more, and if I wanted any Medicines the Apothecaries at Cambridge wou'd let me have them at prime Cost, and us'd me as I have lately been by those very eminent Men of the Profession at Market-Harborough.

There was at Cottenham a very worthy Divine, Dr. Fleetwood, who foon shew'd me great favour, and in regard to his Benevolence, and Memory, may my Gratitude be as lasting as my Life.

The Encouragement I met with at Cottenham, and the Towns adjacent, soon enabled me a third Time to send for my Wise, as I was ever unwilling to live without her, and always desirous she shou'd share my good Fortune; and in three Months (from our parting at Cambridge) we met again at Cottenham, where through the continuance of Dr. Fleetwood and his Lady's Favours, we met with a great deal of Civility from the Neighbours; who were a kind, good fort of substantial People; and there we liv'd in as much comfort and plenty as I could wish for. to all these Comforts of Life. Dr. Fleet wood's Benevolences were very extensive, his Fresents and his frequent Invitations to his House, his employing and genteelly paying me for what I did for his Family; and when ill himself, always gave me half a Guinca of a Morning when I went to fee him, with compliments of making me his Physician: These were not the only Instances of his Goodneis, but he employ'd me for a great many poor People, which (exclusive of his own, and family Business) amounted to twenty Pounds a Year: Befides these great marks of his charity to his poor Neighbours, he still gave further Proofs of his Goodness, and at any Time it I had a visit to pay three or four Miles, He'd fend his Servants and a Coach and four to efcort my Lady and I: And besides our dining with him every Sunday, he'd fend for me to dinner two or three times a Week, and many Evenings when I was not at his House, he would tend his Servant with Wine; and He and his good Lady would come and fpend tome Hours with us; and greater favotirs flill he wou'd confer, for when Sturbitch Fair approach'd, he has presented me with five Guineas at a time, to buy what I had occasion for, &c.

There was at the same time Mr. Cook, a Gentleman of great Worth and Property, his Curate, who us'd me also with all marks of civility and friendship, and whose savours as I have great Reason to remember, I shall gratefully acknowledge. Mr. John Webb, was a friendly, genteel, spirited, wealthy Man: as also was Vincent Wayman, a kind, good natur'd, generous Friend, with Mr. Peck, Dowsey, and several others. With these Friends and Neighbours I spent some Part of my Life very agreeably; till another unlucky Accident happen'd, which once more interrupted my rural Enjoyments and turn'd me a drift.

Life

It happen'd that my good Friend Mr. Cook, who was Curate to Dr. Fleetwood, had a Living fell to him in Norfolk, which made the Curacy of Cottenham vacant, and I having some interest with Dr. Fleet-wood, (unknown to my Friend whom I was inclin'd to ferve,) told the Doctor I heard Mr. Cook was going to leave him, and I wish'd he wou'd give me leave to recommend to him a neighbouring Clergyman for his Curate, whom I believ'd wou'd be very acceptable to his Parishoners. The Dr. seem'd upon my first application, to give me reason to hope for Success; and I went the next Day to tell my Friend what I had been endeavouring to ferve him in, who was greatly pleas'd, and express'd a grateful Sense of my good Intentions; and faid, could I but procure him that Curacy, he should never have it in his Power to make me a fuitable return. I promis'd him nothing should be wanting in me; and the next Day I din'd with Dr. Fleet wood, and renewed my folicitations: The Doctor then ask'd me who it was, and if ever I heard him preach, and if I thought he wou'd be agreeable to his Parish; all these Questions I answer'd in the behalf of my Friend, and gave the Doctor fo much fatisfaction that he defired I would fetch him the next Day to dine with him; I went with great joy that same asternoon to my Friend, Mr. Sefe, Vicar of Histon, about two little Miles from Cottenham, and told him what progress I had made in his behalf; and also told him, that Dr. Fleetwood desir'd he would come the next Day to dine with him.

Mr. Sefe came the next Day and call'd upon me, and I went with him to dine with Dr. Flectwood; the Doctor receiv'd him with great civility, and as foon as dinner was over, the Doctor told him he was recommended by me, to fucceed Mr. Cook, and according to the Character I had given, (which he did not doubt but was just,) he should agree with him for the fame he gave Mr. Cook, which was I think one-hundred Pounds yearly, and to be paid every Quarter. Accordingly Dr. Fleetwood covenanted with Mr. Sefe, Vicar of Histon, who was to refide at Cottenham; yet to keep his Vicarage of Histon too; Mr. Seje, commenc'd Curate at Michaelmas 1732, which Curacy he has poffes'd upwards of twenty-two Years; and I hope will to the End of his Days, and I am glad I had an opportunity of being fo ferviceable to him and his Family; altho' his return, was neither confishent with friendship, or gratitude, or becoming a Christian.

Soon after Mr. Sefe came to Cottenham, he thought I too largely shar'd Dr. Fleetwood's favours, and he took an opportunity to lessen me in the Opinion of that good Family; which I shall relate.

Dr. Fleetwood's Steward or Bailiff, whose name was Cadwell, being taken ill of a Pleurify, Mrs. Fleetwood, like many more good ladies, took Pleasure in Acts of Charity, in the Physical way, and upon Cadwell's first complaint gave him a Vomit, and afterwards Sweats &c, which fucceeded badly, for by this treatment the Symptoms became more violent, and in a Day or two.

This unkind Representation was the first and last Return I had for serving Mr. Sefe, and this prov'd most effectual. This the Dr. and Mrs. Fleetwood both took so ill, that they never after employ'd employ'd me, for Themselves, Servants, or Neighbours, nor any other savours I receiv'd afterwards.

By this unlucky Circumstance, from this base ungrateful Representation, depriving me of Dr. Fleet wood's business and favours, I soon lost the Business and Friendship of my Neighbours; and after some endeavours to no purpose, I was with a Wise and sour Children starv'd out, and went to London in pursuit of better Fortune, which was in the Year 1734.

The Day I left Cottenham, I went to take my leave of the Doctor and his Lady; lamenting my unhappiness in forfeiting their Favours, which I had so extensively experienc'd; and altho' a bad use, with no good design, was made of some Words I spoke, it could not be thought I said any thing with a Defign to affront them; but fince it had fo unfortunately happen'd to rob me of that friendflip, which was my chief Comfort and Support, I had also lost all the rest of my Friends and Bufiness, and had been starving almost two Years, and now was going to Lond n. The Doctor anfwer'd, he was very forry it so happen'd, and faid, Mr. Major, if you'll make use of my Name in Town, or if you want a Recommendation upon any Account, if You, or any Person will write, I will give you fuch a one as may be ferviceable; and to convince you, that you have my good wishes, accept of this as a token of them, (which was a Prefent of two Guineas,) and I shall always be glad to hear of your Welfare, and when it may fall in your way, defire you'll call upon me.

When I came to London, as my Wife's Father and Mother had hitherto shewn me very small friendship, a Brother of my Wife's, then a young Man in Leadenhall-Sreet, was very ready to promife great Things, and at last I was to be prefer'd to keep a little publick House, to sell fine Ale and Punch, in great Garden by White-Chappel. and my employ was to keep my Skittle-Ground in Order and to fet up the Pinns, when he and his worthy Acquaintance knock'd them down, and to wait upon my Guetts; this did not relish: I thought my Birth and Education, intitled me to fomething a little preferable, and having very poor Encouragement, in about three Months I desir'd he'd dispose of the Skittles and Frames and other Materials, for I must apply for fomething better; my Wife took a Lodging and work'd plain Work, and what ever was in my Power I did to affift her; I went to be fometime with a Sifter in Hannover-Street, near the Square, (who always was ready to succour her diffress'd Relations, even to her own Prejudice, and fome too have made her very bad returns for her kind Succour,) there I continued some time, and afterwards (by the Advice of Mr. Morrison, whom I was acquainted with at St. John's Colledge Cambridge,) took a Lodging near Storeys Gate Westminster, where I practis'd Physick; Mr. Morrison and some more Gentlemen recommending me. I had a Patient, one Mrs. Williamson in Charles-Street St. James's, this Gentlewoman miscarrying in a Fever, and being dangeroufly ill, and fearing I should be censur'd in case she died, I desir'd a Physician might be called in, who was no less a Man, then Dr. Hollands; as Dress goes a great way to make a Man wife, I flanding in need of fuch Advantages, was oblig'd to make the best Appearance I could; I equip'd myself, and in the Evening met the Doctor, whom whom I inform'd as to the Nature of her Illness, and the Manner I had treated her: The Doctor complaifantly approv'd of the Medicines I had given, but faid, that we must have now some regard to the Miscarriage, which was agreed to, and I being the youngest Physician, prescrib'd, and both fign'd the Prescription, and gave it Mr. Sankey, her Apothecary; we then both took our leave of our Patient, and appointed the next Day to meet, which we did to a third Vifit; fhe mending, the Doctor took his leave and left her to my Care. Here I must own I was under a great deal of Confusion, least the Doctor should discover me; and I am realy furpriz'd, how many have the Affurance to call themselves Physicians, and practice as fuch, who have no more claim to it than myself! My Sister being well acquainted with many Persons of Repute help'd me to several Patients, and Mr. Stirling, an Apothecary, by Hanover-Square, has many of my Prescriptions by him to this Day, who really believ'd I was a -Graduate, and as fuch recommended me; but being conscious that I had taken no Degree, nor obtain'd the Sanction of any foreign Univerfity, I chose as foon as possible to commence Apothecary again. I must relate what extream, Pleasure it was to me, when ever I got a small Fee, to carry something good to my Wife and Children, and have walk'd many a dark Night from Westminster to Mile-End, for that Purpose.

I often read the Papers, to see if I could meet with any Thing offering that I could maintain myself and Family by, I saw an Advertisement for an Apothecary to take care of the Poor of St. Andrew above Barrs, and St. George the Martyr; told my Friend Mr. Morrison, I had a mind to enquire after this Advertisement, and he went with me to the Mafter of that Work-house, who was my Name-fake of a good Family out of Oxfordfbire, and I thought we were nearly related by misfortunes. He told me the Particulars, and tho a small Sallery, yet an handsome Apartment, and a good Table was allow'd &c, which I thought preferable to the uncertain Way I was in. The Master told me I must bring proper Credentials, fign'd by the Physicians and Apothecaries. My Friend Morrison affifting me, I drew up a Testimonial, which I took to Mr. Wall, then an Apothecary in Newgate-Street, but now of Fetter-Lane, who was my early Acquaintance at Eisbop-Startford-School, and we were Apprentices both at the fame Time in Fenchurch-Street; tho' I believe I had not feen him for the last ten or a dozen Years. He was very glad to fee me; I told him, I had a Favour to beg, he ask'd me what it was, and any thing in his Power he was ready to ferve me. Why Sir, I am come to beg your Interest towards procuring me a little Place, and then acquainted him what it was; he was both furpris'd and concern'd, that I should apply for so mean an Employ, for he heard I was in good Business in Cambridgesbire. 'Tis very true, but I have met with fo many misfortunes which have reduc'd me to want both Pufiness and an Home. This I can affure you Mr. Wall, I have never done any Thing to forfeit my Character, and can produce from every corner strong Testimonials to certify it, and no one ever got any discredit by Recommending me; I then gave him the Paper which I had drawn up, and he directly went with me to Batson's Coffee-Houle,

As the Time of Election would not be in less than a fortnight, besides the Interest I made in Town, I wrote to Dr. Fleetwood, Dr. Sandys, and other Gentlemen of great Eminence at Cambridge, who directly fent up Credentials in my behalf; Mr. Lewis fign'd my Paper, as Fellow of Jesus-Colledge in Cambridge, whom I accidentally met with in Town; Mr. Wall and Mr. Morrison, and some other Friends attended the Election; and I with my Friends appear'd, and produc'd my Papers of Recommendation, which were fo ftrong that I receiv'd the Compliments of the Committee, as deferving fomething much more preferable; but one of the Candidates being a Parishioner reduc'd, whom they must have otherwife maintain'd, they thought proper to choose him. I then went to wait on Mr. S-n-b-n. who told me he had lately bought a Shop in Hatton-Garden, which was the late Mr. Aftley's, in order to fecure fome Families, which us'd to employ Mr. Aftley; but being at too great a diftance from his Shop, he could not conveniently attend the Business of both, and he had put in a Tourneyman, whom he thought too young to visit Patients. We went together to the Shop in Hatton-Garden, where we covenanted for forty Pounds per Annum, with Lodging, Fire, Candle &c, every thing but Diet, allowing me what advantages I cou'd make in the venereal Practice, and five Shillings in the Pound profit for all fuch new Patients as I should bring to the Shop; and upon these terms I enter'd upon Bufiness, and took a Lodging for my Wife and Children in great Kirby-Street, where we dieted together.

Mr. S-n-b-n, approving my application to Bu-

finess, and that the Patients were well satisfied with my attendance; he in less than three Months propos'd Partnership, and accordingly we articled, and for about three Months more we acted as Partners; and then he told me I should take the Shop upon my own footing, and he would referve only fix or eight of the best Families, as good will for his letting me have the Shop and the Business. I willing to comply with any terms fo as to be enabled to maintain myself and Family, we came to a third Agreement, and in less than fix Months, I was Journeyman, Partner, and Mafter. I was to give him the fame Price for the Shop, Druggs, Medicines, Utenfils, &c, as he gave to Mrs. Afley, not with flanding he took most of the best Families from the Shop; which I was to attend for nothing, and find them medicines into the Bargain. He then gave me poffeffion, and I, for his fecurity gave him a Bond and Judgment, and I was also at any Time, when he requir'd, to attend the Patients belonging to his Shop in Devonshire-Street. This was a safe Bargain on his fide; he was fure of his Profits, and if I made not good my Performance, he had it always in his Power to reposses himself.

The first thing that gave me Disturbance after I commenc'd Master, was one Parnell, a Carpenter, who sitted up my Skittle-Ground in Mile-End: He finding I was settled, and my Wise's good Brother Mr. H--II, who put me into that new Way of Life, and ordered and directed every thing, and every thing I lest him to make the best of, to pay the People that had done the Work; did not think proper to pay them, and by this Carpenter I was without any notice sued; neither did this Brother after I was arrested, when I apply'd to him, and told him upon what terms Mr. S-n-b-n had let me into the Shop; urging, that shou'd he hear of this unlucky Affair, he wou'd be exasperated, and in order to fecure himself take the Shop from me, as he had it in his Power fo to do. All this had no influence upon my Wife's kind Brother; but after the expence of Law amounting to as much as the Debt, and an Execution approaching, I then told Mr. S-n-b-n of the Affair, that he might not fuffer from this unkind Usage of my good Brother in Law; and at the same Time I gave Mr. 8-nb-n back my Writings, and also gave him Possession of the Shop again: Mr. S-n-b-n like a good Friend. feeing I was likely in a little Time to furmount this Difficulty, went to the Attorney and gave him Satisfaction for the Debt and Charges, and repoffefs'd me of the Shop and Business, for which I was much oblig'd to him, and thankful. apply'd to all my Wifes good Relations, and desir'd that ten of them would advance me five Pounds each, and he would farther advance me fifty Pounds more, to fet me above Difficulties, and the better to enable me to profecute the profperous View I then had of well doing, Mr. S-n-b-n with my Friend Mr. Wall, prevail'd upon two or three of them to meet us at the Salutation Tavern, upon Holborn-Bridge, but nothing could we get them to Advance; in short, these unkind People thought Mr. S-n-b-n had already done fo much, that he must do more, or he would be a very great Sufferer. This their base way of thinking, was enough to exasperate the most stedfast Friend; but notwithstanding the flights of my Relations, that were sufficient to weaken the strongest Inclination of Strangers, yet Mr. S-11-b-13

S-n-b-n was fo good as to join with me to borrow fifty Pounds, to pay this unlucky demand of Debt and Charges of the Carpenter for Skittle Frames &c. and to supply my further Wants. As I had now taken the House upon a long Lease at thirty Pounds per Ann. and wanted fome Furniture, having got my Family Home to me in Hatton-Garden, and labouring under great Disadvantages in such straight Circumstances with a large Family, yet went on very well, by renewing fome old Acquaintance, and getting fome new, I added very much to my Bufiness and lived in good Reputation. In about a Year after I had been fettled in Hatton-Garden, there became a Vacancy for an Apothecary to take Care of the Poor in Shoe Lane Workhouse belonging to St. Andrew's, Holborn, for a certain Salary of thirty Pound per Ann. but the venereal Patients, and some out Patients besides, were seperately paid for, which made it amount to near as much more, and being concern'd for a Parish in a publick Capacity. was a good introduction to better business.

Mr. Harris an eminent and wealthy Apothecary, was that year Master of our Company, and being a Gentleman of great Influence in St. Andrew's Parish, to whom I apply'd, by my good Friend Mr. Wall, who at that time was Partner with Mr. Harris, made interest in my behalf. I was also greatly obliged for Mr. Barton's savours upon this Account; and by the Interest of these Gentlemen, I was chose, and continu'd Apothecary to their Poor, as long as I liv'd in their Parish.

M. S-n-b-n, as foon as I was elected Apothecary to this Work-house, was so good as to offer me one of his Apprentices, till I could get one of my own, to save me the Expence of a Journeyman, which would be helpful to me, and advantageous to the young Man, by seeing a great deal of publick Practice, whereby Youth may be improv'd. This piece of Friendship I suspected was more the desire of Mr. S-n-b-n than myfelf (as the young Man might have an Opportunity of giving his Master an account of my Proceedings; as the Brother was lately dead, who was there for the same Purpose, but if I was fure that was the View, I think as Mr. S-n-b-n was fo largely concern'd he ought to have all the Satisfaction he required) I thank'd him, and accepted his Offer, as I was conscious, what Information might be given, wou'd rather prove to my Advantage than otherwise, as I had nothing cou'd hurt me, unless a Representation of my Wife's refractory Temper, which he already knew, and has often faid, if I got 100 Pounds per Ann. her Behaviour wou'd ruin me. I continu'd on my Bufiness very well, this being the third Year, and tho' he feem'd to be my Friend he was of a very unsettled Temper, and I had enough to do to please him; and really think it wrong Judgment of any one to lay too much Restraint upon Persons who are under Obligations, when after three or four Years Probation, they meet with no cause of Suspicion, it only makes Favours have an unpleasant Relish. Such was his Behaviour to me upon going to fee my Wife, who after a Fever was gone to Abridge in Effex for a little Air as I shall relate. I went one Afternoon, when my Business was taken care of, to fee her, and flaid till the next Evening, and upon my return Home, I found Mr. S-n-b-n in my House who told me he had taken Possession, and should keep it, fince I went out upon Pleasure and staid all Night; I expostulated the Matter with him.

him, and told him I could not think he was in earnest; but he infisted upon it, then Sir I tell you I am not to be turn'd out after this Manner, and if you are in earnest, you should have come with a legal Authority, and not at this time of Night to bid me turn out as if I was your Footman; he finding this would not do, alter'd his Tone, and faid he had no other defign than to afright me; I did not like the Jest, but what had that very Day irritated him, was, Mr. Goodwin (whose Family I had attended. and found in Medicines almost three Years,) had told him he understood that I was not acting for myfelf, but for him; and if that was the Cafe, he should employ an Apothecary of his own choofing, unless he cou'd employ me folely, and by this declaration of Mr. Goodwin's, I had him afterwards for my own proper Patient.

Soon after this, Mr. S-n-b-n came one Morning in a wonderful good Temper, and told me, there was fomething happen'd that would be a Chariot for me, I ask'd him what that could be, he faid 'tis a Secret yet, and only known by the Committee (of which I'm one) and I am come to tell you that you may be foon enough in your Application; and you'll certainly have it, upon the Recommendation you before brought, and they all allow you to be the most fit Man, and my Brother and I with feveral more will make all the Interest we can for you; but pray Sir what is it? Why he reply'd, the Apothecary who was chose when you before offer'd yourself to look after the Poor in Grays-Inn-Lane Work-house, is not capable of taking Care of the Poor, and the Gentlemen are determin'd to farm it, and will give a Salary of one-hundred Pounds per Ann. to a Man they shall approve; and and then he gave me a List of the Committee. and bid me lose no time; I went directly to confult that worthy Gentleman Mr. Barton, who readily visited some and wrote to others in my behalf, I apply'd to every Man of them, and most of them I knew; and I met with as much Encouragement as I could wish for: To make short of it, I met with so many promises that I thought myself quite safe; Mr. S-n-b-n, had us'd to call once, or twice a Day, to know my Success, and I gave him a particular Account, which he feem'd greatly pleas'd with: the next Day when he came, he told me who befides were making interest, I think no less than fix; but he said none can hurt you, unless two should join and one decline at the Election in favour of the other, and I think the better to secure your Interest, will be for me to make what Interest I can, as for myself; and when the Election comes on, I will refign in your Favour; this I lik'd much, and he fet off in making interest for himself; which in fact I found he had been doing all the while, under pretence of ferving me, as the fequel will make appear: I fluck very close to my Friends, and one of them told me the next Morning Mr. S-n-b-n had been with him for his Vote; yes faid I to him, that's all the same, Mr. S-n-b-n does that to lessen the Strength of my Opponents.

I had acquainted the Committee of that Workhouse in Shoe-Lane, I was then employ'd by, of my design; and every one promis'd me their best Endeavours to serve me, and ordered a Testimonial of my Care, Diligence and Success, to be drawn up, and very strongly set forth, which they all sign'd to be deliver'd at the Day of Election, which which time being come, I got my Friends together at the King's-Head-Tavern, near Middle-Row Holborn, and no fooner had I fat down, but the Drawer told me, a Gentleman in the Yard wanted to fpeak with me; and who should it be? but Mr. S-n-b-n, I let him know I had got my Friends with me; which were ready to vote: He then told me he thought it would be most adviseable for me to decline in favour of him, and if he was chose, he wou'd directly transfer it to me; faying, as he had liv'd fo many Years in reputation in the Parish, and had been of the Committee for several Years; that should I carry my Election since he had apply'd, it wou'd make him look little; and he only wanted the Credit of being Elected, and if he did keep it half a Year, or a Year at the farthest, he then would refign it to me; I told him he greatly furpris'd me; nevertheless, if my Friends in the Room advis'd me, I would do it; but if they did not, and should I, (after giving them fo much trouble) decline standing, and ever after apply to them, no one wou'd ferve me; and desir'd he'd go into the Room and consult them; which he refus'd, and then he began to be in a Paffion, and told me he should infift upon it; adding, I was in his Power and if I did not I must take what follow'd, and left me in the utmost Confusion.

I directly acquainted my Friends what had pass'd, who to a Man insisted upon my standing the Election, and advis'd me to let Mr. Barton know what had happen'd; which I did, and he thought it a piece of cruel, unfair treatment; and insisted upon my standing the Election, and sent the Beadle of Shoe-Lane Liberty, with my Recommendation to the Committee; and he was fo good as to attend himself in my behalf; I told Mr. Barton what obligations I was under to Mr. S-n-b-n, in whose Power it was to destroy me, which he had given me fome reasons to think he would do; nevertheless go I must, and so I did; I call'd on my Friends whom I left at the King's-

Head, and they went with me to vote.

As foon as I, with my Friends, came to the Work-House, Mr. S-n-b-n met me in the Yard, I told him I was very forry to do any thing contrary to his commands, but Mr. Barton and the Gentlemen of the Committee of Shoe-Lane Workhouse, had fent a Recommendation by the Beadle, and ordered me to attend; he in anger answered, you do this in opposition to me, and you must expect the consequence. Fearing I should carry my Election; a Question was put (I will not fay by whom) whether or no, I had the fame pretentions to be a Candidate, as an Apothecary who liv'd in that Liberty. 'Tis to be observ'd, that this great Parish of St. Andrew's, Holborn, is divided into three diffinct Liberties, and has three seperate Work-Houses (viz,) this in little Grays-Inn-Lane, another on Saffron-Hill, and the other in Shoe-Lane, and every diffinct Liberty maintains the Poor of that Liberty; fo that each Parish has different Committees, and Officers to each Work-house: And upon this Question, a warm debate arose, which postpon'd the Election a fortnight.

My justly esteem'd Friend Mr. Barton, and the rest of the Gentlemen, my well wishers, advised me to take an House, and fit up a Shop in that Liberty; which I did, and fent a Bed, and other Goods, and either my Apprentice or my other

Man

Man lay there, and when I could not be at that Shop, one of my Servants was. This my Friend S-n-b-n perceiving, and as a proof of what I might farther expect, came to me and infifted upon my taking up the Bond we borrow'd the fifty Pounds upon, as some part of it was unpaid; which by the Affistance of good Mr. Barton, I paid the remainder and continu'd my application for the next Election; at which time I met Mr. S-n-b-n again, who told me he found I was refolv'd to oppose him, but he would make me a suitable return. The Point being again debated, who had a right to fland Candidates; I was admitted as fuch, by a great Majority; I being call'd in, told the Gentlemen. I had once before offer'd to ferve them by being in the House, and the Reason I repeated my Sollicitations this time was folely owing to Mr. S-n-b-n who gave me the first intelligence of their intending to farm it, and who also at the same time gave me a List of this honourable Committee, to whom (before this time) I was recommended in fuch firong terms which engag'd me the Favours of Mr. S-n-b-n, who had (till this unhappy difference) given me great reason to believe him my fincere Friend, and I had in this as well as in every other transaction, fince I first knew him, acted with first conformity to his Will; and never had any thoughts of giving you Gentlemen farther trouble upon this Account, had not Mr. S-n-b-n (under a pretence of Friendship) came and advis'd me to it; when at the same time he promis'd me all the Interest in his Power; but he finding the Encouragement I met with, from most of you Gentlemen here present, he (in about a Week after I had made my Application) came and H 2

told me nothing could prevent my Success; unless any other two Candidates, should transfer the Interest of one to the other; in order the better to guard against this, he told me he would make interest for himself, as he was sensible he could attain some particular Votes that I could not; and accordingly this was agreed to, by us both; and every Day we faw each other to make known our Success, till about two hours before the last meeting of this honourable Committee, Mr. S-n-b-n came to me at the King's-Head-Tavern in Holborn, where I had met my Friends in order to proceed to the Election; but I was foon call'd to Mr. S-n-b-n, whom I was very glad to fee, imagining he was come according to promife to join me with his Friends: He then told me, he thought it most adviseable that I should decline in his Favour, that he might be elected, who had liv'd fo long in this Liberty, and I had been fo little a time in the Parish. He said it would be a discredit to him, should I be chose and he not, affuring me at the same time, that was his only reason for flanding, and that if he was elected, he would not long keep it, but transfer it to me; I was furpriz'd at this fudden turn of mind, and told him that in my opinion I was the most likely to be chosen; on this consideration, as the Gentlemen knew him to be a Man of Fortune, with good Business and no Children; and as he was pleas'd to fay it would be a Chariot for me; I faid to him you have one already, and I apprehend my being in low Circumstances, with a large Family, confifting of fix Children, befides myfelf Wife and Servants, all supported by my Industry: And urged that these Considerations may prove Motives

Motives with these worthy Gentlemen, as I hope they do; I further urged to Mr. S-n-b-n, that I should use my Friends with disrespect was I to flight their Favours, and should (hereafter) any thing offer, I could then expect no favour; but if my Friends who are hear ready to vote for me, they will confent to it, in obedience to your Commands, I will readily do it; and defir'd he'd go into the Room to them to know their pleasure, which Mr. S-n-b-n refus'd, and parted with me in anger. I directly told my Friends what had pass'd betwixt us, who all infifted upon my flanding, and advis'd me to acquaint Mr. Barton, whom I did, and he was of the fame opinion, and it is in compliance with their Commands I now offer myfelf before you; and I should with the utmost unwillingness oppose Mr. S-n-b-n in any other case, as I am so much in his Power, but in this I'm oblig'd; and I have already receiv'd an earnest of, and have farther expectations of his feverity, from what he faid to me just now in the Yard. And then I told the Gentlemen the nature of these Obligations, and further faid to them, should it be your pleasure, Gentlemen, from the recommendation of my Friends, the narrowness of my Circumstances, the largeness of my Family, and my defire to maintain them, with other unhappy Circumstances I have related; I say, should these excite your compassion and induce you to make me Apothecary to this House, I shall not only do my Duty as fuch, but shall to my last hour, bear a grateful remembrance of your Goodness, and in order to prevent my threatning destruction, I desire not to receive one Penny of my Salary; but as it becomes due it may be paid to Mr. S-n-b-n, which I hope he'll accept as a fuffifufficient Security for the remains of what is due to him; I then made my Obedience and withdrew.

The Gentlemen then proceeded to an Election, and agreeable to an old Proverb; while two Dogs are fighting for a Bone, comes a third and runs away with it. For this unlucky Division made an opening for another to succeed; and they chose Mr. Smithsman, an eminent Apothecary in Devon-shire-street; who is Apothecary to this Day, and this Election was in the Year 1738.

Thus disappointed of my hopes, and depriv'd not only of my Friend, but now he was commenc'd the reverse; yet he thought an immediate Execution of his displeasure would be look'd upon as revenge. I was now by a close adherence to that Business I had, making what Provision I could in order to make him another payment against Christmas; which he promis'd to accept when I pay'd the Bond off about Michaelmas; but about two Months after on a Saturday Night, he had ordered his Nephew (who was then my Apprentice) to let him know when I was at home; he was then waiting for me, with two Bailiffs, with a Writto fend me to Goal, and an Execution against my Effects, and as foon as I came in, my Apprentice (Judas like) went and betraved his Master: But providentially, whilft he was gone to fetch his Uncle and the Bailiffs, I was fent for to Mackrell's-Coffee-House in Bartlett's-Buildings, which is in the City Liberty, and Hatton-Garden is in Middlesex; my other Man more trusty, (tho' to him he had made some overtures to prove false;) came and told me Mr. S-n-b-n with two Bailiffs were in the House, and had taken Possession, and they wanted me very much. I bid him go home and tell tell his Mistress not to be frighted, and about twelve or one o'Clock I would come, as I knew then they could not execute a Warrant of Arrest; I went first to Mr. Jones an Attorney, and told him what had happen'd, and he gave me great hopes by his affurances of Friendship, which shall be hereafter explain'd. And about one or two o'Clock on Sunday Morning I went home, and found these two Bailiffs in Possession, and as this was on Christmas-Eve, I told them as they were come to keep Christmas with me, I would give them the best Entertainment in my Power, and order'd them a good Piece of roaft Beef and a plumb Pudding for Dinner, and gave them as much strong Beer and Punch as they would drink, telling them as I could only have the Pleasure of their Company that Day with fafety, I should make them welcome, but they must excuse my seeing them the next Day; I had got them to fuch a Pitch that one of them faid, God bless you Master, I am forry for this misfortune, but if we should see you to-morrow it may be worse; I thank'd them, and leaving them merry, and what Liquor they would drink, I went to Mr. Jones, and fent him to Mr. S-n-b-n, to know if he would take the Men out of Poffeffion, or what other Terms he would come to; who answer'd, he would hear of nothing, but all his Demands with Charges. I found nothing but my Destruction was aim'd at, and destroy'd I was. I went to acquaint my Wife's Relations of this Affair, but could obtain no redress from them; indeed her Brother came with me to my Lawyer, who faid he'd foon make Mr. S-n-b-n glad to come to terms; I went to my Landlord Mr. Berkley on Ludgate-Hill, to acquaint him with what had happen'd

I return'd home and found my Christmas visiters very merry; we fupp'd together, and afterwards took a chearful Glass, and my Guests drank so freely that they were obliged to be affifted in getting to bed, and I return'd to my Lodgings in Crutched-Fryers; Mr. Jones with some other affistance, whilst these Gentlemen were taking their repose mov'd most of the best Goods to his House, in hopes it would be a Means of bringing Mr. S-n-b-n into better Terms: Altho' these Goods were remov'd off the Premisses, to prevent being fold by the Sheriff's Officers, no part of them were disposed of; but as soon as the Commission was taken out they were all brought back and taken an Account of. The Shop remain'd, which the Landlord feiz'd for his Rent.

The next Morning the Sheriff's Officer came to fee after his two Bumms who had the effects of vefterdays regale in their Heads and knew nothing of the matter till the Officer told them, who drew his Hanger and fwore he'd demolish them; but the Goods being remov'd before an Inventory was made, the Officers escap'd being liable, and what was left did little more than pay the Rent. Mr. S-n-b-n, being inform'd what had happen'd, threatned the Officer very hard, but he came into no trouble. Yet after all this, he'd come to no reasonable Terms; it was not the Money he wanted fo much, as to gratifie a piece of Revenge I fear: But as the Goods were gone and the Shop feiz'd for Rent, 'twas not worth while keeping thefe Men in Possession, so they were soon discharg'd.

ment, that was in my Power to make by the Advise of my Friends, in order to prevent my total Destruction; I acquainted my Creditors, which were not many, with my prefent unhappy Situation, and it was their Opinion, the most effectual Way to prevent my entire Ruin, and to free me from future Perfecution, would be taking out a Commission of Bankruptcy. And that most justly esteem'd Gentleman, who a little before affifted me in paying the Bond upon the first Breach betwixt Mr. S-nb-n and myself, was so good (with others that knew my hard treatment) to be my petitioning Creditors; and accordingly a Commission was taken out; and I agreeable to my Summons furrenderd myfelf to the Commissioners, and the Goods before remov'd were all brought back and deliver'd for the Use of my Creditors; and according to the Appointments of the Commissioners, I met them at Guild-Hall, and made a true discovery of my Effects, book Debts, &c. And at last I got through this long, tedious, expensive Trouble; and my Certificate was fign'd, and I fet off Altho' this was a most effectual Means to prevent the defign of Cruelty and Revenge; yet it was attended with most unhappy Consequences; for first, during the time I was oblig'd to be absent from business, I must inevitably loose part of it, and when I began again I had not Six-pence to fet off with; and those who had lost Money by me, I could expect no credit from; and after fuch an Odium as being a Bankrupt, I could neither get credit for a Loaf, or any thing to keep us a-live with; my Wife's Relations (who knew I was by this Commission clear'd) yet would not advance one Farthing to enable me to profecute my my Business. I was oblig'd to call in the Demands of my own Relations, being put to it, to prove myself in debt sufficient to obtain a Commission, for a Man must owe one-hundred Pounds to one Person, or one-hundred and fifty Pounds to two, or he must owe two-hundred Pounds in the whole, and it fignifies nothing if he owes it to two-hundred Persons; which shews that after all the vissicitudes of this Life, with a large Family I was put to it, to muster up demands to that amount; which was an Evidence I had not in all my difficulties run greatly into debt; and to fuffer the same Reproach, and to be at the same Expence for a trifle, as for twenty-thousand Pounds, I look upon it wrong judgment for any Man to become a Bankrupt for fmall Sums; for my Debts and Effects amounted to little more than paid the Expences: And I fuffered in my Reputation, loft my Business, and had not a Penny to help myfelf with; and my good Wife's kind Relations, who were Sun-shine Friends, did not only refuse me affistance, but afterwards they never fo much as employ'd me; and my Landlord feeing I was fo reduc'd, oblig'd me to give him an Order to receive the Salary of the Work-house, as it became due, for satisfaction of his Rent; and to supply the Demands of a Family, those few Persons which did employ me, I was oblig'd to press for Money sooner then most Folks like; and often to prevent our flarving, I have not only been forc'd to borrow Money upon my Goods, but frequently upon my Cloaths too.

I have impartially related what past betwixt Mr. S-n.b-n and myself, from our first Engagement to our last, and the bad Consequences which have ensu'd, and I leave the unprejudic'd to form what

Tudgment

Judgment he pleafeth. The former part of his Treatment most evidently had the appearance of Friendship and Charity, but the latter seems quite the reverse; and what could be his motives at first? I hope not a regard altogether to his own interest, any more, than the last was owing to refentment: I would rather believe them to arise from the unkind Usage of my Wife's Relations, and her violent Imprudence, which he often told me, he fear'd would be my ruin; but I shall fay no more upon this Subject, as I can't answer for myself, what in the fame Circumstances I should have done; only this, was it to come over again I would give it up, as I had receiv'd fuch favours, and I would have truffed to his honour which I should have done at that time; wou'd my Friends have given me leave. But upon the Whole, as things were thus unhappily conducted, we were both great fufferers, which was folely owing to his rash Treatment. But after all that has happen'd, I fill will fubmit to the Character he will at this Day give me; and as for the Favours he did me I heartily thank him, and for the ill Usage, if he so design'd it, I fincerely forgive him; and what he hath fuffer'd by fuch rash treatment, I am greatly concern'd at, and with the most unfeigned Sincerity wish him all the happiness he can wish himself; and I hope he in return forgives me.

Now to return; being thus reduc'd, I made known my distresses to Mr. Westwood, an eminent and worthy Apothecary in Fenchurch-Buildings, whose Compassion soon engaged him to shew me proofs of his Pity, and who was so kind amongst the fraternity and others of his Acquaintance, with the Advice and Recommendation of Mr. Barton.

whom with the utmost sense of Gratitude, I can't too often mention, raised me a Purse of thirty Pounds; and I shall be guilty of ingratitude, was I to forget the bounty of my School-sellow, Sir William Calvert, who largely contributed; as also another worthy Gentleman, who is an ornament to our Prosession, George Garnier Esq; who was not only very bountiful in his Contributions, but frequently treated me with great humanity and compassion. Mr. Westwood, with part of this Money, redeem'd my Goods and Cloaths, paid some sew small debts, and replenish'd my Shop, and put me into a better Condition to attend business; tho' after the satal Bankruptcy I had very little to attend; this was in the Year 1730.

About this time my Family were afflicted with the Small-pox, of which I buried two Children, and foon after one of Convulsions, and a little time after that, I buried a Daughter of a eleven or twelve Years of Age, and while I liv'd in Hatton-Garden, four; and had as many born: But one of my greatest troubles was the death of my eldest Daughter, and to add to it, the Day she lay a dying, my Landlord seiz'd for rent, and took an account of the Bed and Bedding she lay upon, which she was sensibly affected with and died in a few hours after. With these great troubles and straight circumstances I struggled near two Years, when the Work-house was my chief Business and that was engag'd for rent.

I must take Notice that many Temptations are offer'd by a set of wicked artful Villains to Persons in distress'd Circumstances: These Sharpers make it their business to find out Persons who are by adverse Fortunes reduc'd to poverty, and they under under pretence of ferving such unfortunate, make a property of them; I shall relate an instance or two of such Practices, to guard People in distress from being made more so by this Sort of Impostors.

There was one John A-st-ll, a reduc'd Tradefman, being afterwards put to his Wits to live, took up a Trade of difcounting Notes, for which he receiv'd Premiums This Man being one Day at the Magpye, at Holborn-bridge, and hearing me talking with my Landlord, enquir'd who I was, and the next time I came to the House he introduc'd himfelf into my Company, and began with faying, how forry he was for my late misfortunes, when I was before in so good a Way, but added it was not my case alone, for he had shar'd the same Fate; but now was in a comfortable Way of Living, and his bufiness was to help People in diffress, by affifting them with small Sums, and if they kept their payment need never be put to it, &c. As my preffing necessity was urgent; and I unwilling to fink, and ready to catch at every twigg, made me listen the more to this Fellow; who told me, altho' I had met with misfortunes, as I was not in debt, and had preferv'd a good Character, he'd engage to get me ten or twenty Pounds upon my Note, for a small discount; I told him I greatly question it; yes he said, if I would give him a Note payable in three or four months for ten Pounds, he'd bring me the Money in a day or two; accordingly I gave him a Note. The next morning he called upon me, to appoint my meeting him at the same House, at one o'Clock, where the Person who was to advance the Money would be. At the time fixt I went, where I found him, but no one else; it being dinner time he thought a Beef-stake would be very suitable to his Friend, who was coming with the Money; I ordered it to be got ready, and as foon as it was, he was as ready for it, not waiting for his Friend, who he believ'd by flaying fo long would dine first; and after washing his Dinner down with as much Beer as he could drink, thought fomething might have disappointed his coming then; but he'd see him that night to know the Reason and to be certain when and where we should meet, and would let me know in the morning. The next morning he came with a Brother sharper with him. who wanted me to accept of a Draught for twenty Pounds, which he was to buy Goods with; this offer I absolutely refus'd, and after these Gentlemen had taken a Glass or two each of Cinnamon-Water, I was to meet them about noon at the Elephant without Temple-Bar, when he had fome Pork-chops dreft for him and his Friend, who never came, but after flaying as long as he thought fit, he would go to fee for him whom he never found. The next day I was fure to see him with some excuse, and in the evening the Person would without fail be with the Money at the Heath-Cuck in the Strand, where I met him, and to as much purpose as before; fometimes he'd bring a shabby genteel young Fellow, whom he call'd 'Squire, and who was the next Week to receive some rent out of the Country, and if I wanted fifty Pounds I should have it, and upon my own Note, and for what time I pleas'd; then he and his 'Squire were to dine with me on the following Sunday, and fettle the time of meeting him, which I did. I foon discover'd the game this Fellow was playing, and fince I had been so much impos'd on, I thought

I would let him go on a little longer, and was oblig'd fo to do that I might get my Note of him again. I met him several times after, when I had no expectations of Money, but to get him into a humour to give me my Note: At last I told him I found my credit was not good enough to borrow money; I desir'd he'd return the Note. and for what pains he had taken to ferve me I would make him a proper return, and give his Wife a Bottle of Wormwood Water, as she had before many a comfortable Cordial; he faid he was refolved to ferve me, and defir'd I would have a little Patience, which indeed I was forc'd to, by complying with more meetings just to the same purpose, as many before I had given him; only about a month before my Note was due, by many more repeated entertainments I got my Note again: Altho' I knew this Fellow's Villany, I was oblig'd to meet him when and where he pleas'd, and to treat him with what he'd cat and drink, to get out of his Clutches. I no fooner discover'd his Intentions, but I fet down every day, what I paid for his eating and drinking and whereat, with the Drams and Medicines for himself, Wife, and shabby Companions, to the Amount of three Pounds ten Shillings; and some little time after I had got my Note, when he was hugging himfelf with the thoughts of what he had made of me, I arrested him and recover'd every Farthing besides Costs; and I wish others would serve such sharping Villains the same Sauce.

Another set are upon the Hibernian Establishment of Fortune hunting; one of these Gentlemen came to me with a Purse of twenty Guineas, to let him lodge at my House for a Fortnight, and to give him a Character, being about to marry a Lady of Fortune, which I absolutely refused with disdain.

A drest up, middle aged Woman, came as an apothecary's Widow out of Suffolk, as she pretended, to get a Place in some Gentleman's Family, and had heard of one; but as she was a stranger in Town, wanted a Character, and if I would be so kind to give her one, she wou'd give me five Guineas; this Woman I at once judg'd wanted toget into some Family to rob them; I threatn'd her as such, wondering at her impudence, turn'd her out of Doors and heard no more of the Widow.

Adding to my Diffresses, I found Poverty had not only laid me open to want and reproach, but I was beset with such Temptations I was refolv'd to remove from; for what with the Hardships I underwent, and the coolness I met with from Persons I was once in esteem by, and also slighted by my Wise's Relations and others, who ought to have strove to alleviate the cares and difficulties I was struggling with; these things were too hard to bare!

Upon reading the account of Mr. Dresser's Death, who was an Apothecaryof good Business in Cambridge, I went to Dr. Mead, (whose Favours I shall ever gratefully acknowledge) and told him what a miserable Situation I was reduc'd to, and that when a man's Character is once slur'd, it was seldom or never he could (especially in distress'd Circumstances) make any thing of it afterwards in the same Neighbourhood; and as there was a vacancy at Cambridge, there I would willingly go, if I could accomplish it, in hopes of better Fortune: The Dr. readily said he would write to Dr. Bently, and some other Gentlemen, tlemen, and do me all the service in his Power, which accordingly he did; I then acquainted Mr. Barton, Mr. Garnier, Mr. Westwood, and many more Friends, of my intention, who advis'd me to it, since after such cruel Treatment I was not likely to succeed in Hatton-Garden, and upon this occasion Mr. Garnier was so kind as to renew his charitable Assistance; and in the Year 1740, I went to Cambridge, with Letters of Recommendation to Dr.

Bently, and several more Gentlemen.

When I came to Cambridge Mrs. Dreffer had fold her Shop, and let the House to one Mr. Pyke, an eminent Surgeon and Apothecary at Leighton Buzard in Bedfordsbire, (of whom I shall fpeak with that justice and regard which is due to him). But the reception I met with from Dr. Bently, and the encouragement I receiv'd from many Gentlemen in the University, Town, and County, upon my waiting on them, with Teffimonials from Dr. Mead, Dr. Schomberg, Dr. Horseman, Mr. Barton, and many more Gentlemen of great eminence, Mr. Pyke, altho' he had bought the Shop &c. as I had engag'd the Business, thought it not adviseable to remove to Cambridge, but to let me have the Shop, &c. This as it happen'd prov'd an unfortunate Affair to us both, as I shall hereafter fet forth.

I had before I engag'd with Mr. Pyke, fitted up a little Shop by St. Mary's Church; and the business I had soon got into, discourag'd him from settling, and encourag'd him to let me have the Shop he had bought, upon my own Security. Mr. Pyke well knowing my Circumstances could not be impos'd upon; neither did he distrust the sufficiency of my being able to make good my Engagements. Accordingly he fold me the Shop, with Medicines. Utenfils &c. for one-hundred Pounds, for which he took my Bond payable one year after Date; and he gave me Poffession, and Mrs. Dreser gave back his Lease of the House, and took one from me, and I directly mov'd into the House: I need not inform the Gentlemen of the University, Town or County, what Business and Ffleem I foon came into, (but those, who were not Witnesses of my good or bad Fortune;) This I may with certainty fay, there was not a College in the whole University, but I had Patients in, especially Trinity, King's, St. John's, Emanuel and Cajus; the late Master, the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Ely's Favours in employing me, I esteem as an Honour; the chief Gentlemen of the Town and County favour'd me with their Business, and Mr. Ireland dying foon after, great part of his Bufiness fell to me.

Thus happily situated amongst Gentlemen of the most extensive Abilities and Goodness, whose favours I greatly experienc'd, and whose humane usage has made lasting impressions of Gratitude; which makes the reverse Treatment from Rusticks, perplex and gaul my Soul, whose insolence and reproach, added to starving Circumstances, who can bear? But to return; in this happy and most agreeable Situation, with daily Instances of encreasing Favours, having as I then thought nothing to fear, and nothing more to hope for, than the lasting continuance of that happy prosperous State I enjoy'd: But to shew the uncertainty of all things here below, while in the midst of all my wish'd for happiness; behold! how cruel Fortune unkindly interfer'd.

For as foon as my reception and fuccess had reach'd the Ears of my London Lawyer (whom I before spoke of as being concern'd for me in that unhappy dispute with Mr. S-n-b-n) He wrote to me, to fend him up a Note, payable to him or Order for fifty Pounds value receiv'd, fix Months after date; this Letter gave me some uneafiness, yet I fent him no Answer, as I knew I did not owe him one Farthing, but he at the same time was indebted to me twelve Pound, (as I shall presently make appear) but as I gave him no Answer, he soon sent me a fecond Letter, with this Addition, that unless by the return of the Post, I fent him such a Note as he requir'd, he'd be the ruin of me and my Family &c. &c. to this likewise I gave no Answer, as I was conscious I owed him nothing; he in about a fortnights time, fent down a Writ for fifty Pound, which I was arrested for, and fent to Cambridge-Castle. This was a most fatal blow at such a time, and made a great Alarm; People had ffrange conceptions of my Circumstances, to attempt to settle, and to be liable to be fent to Goal directly, where I lay at a great expence near a Month, before I could get my Liberty; had it been a just Debt it was in my Power to have paid it directly, and as it was not, I had better to have given twice the Sum than have been fent to Goal: But who would have done fo I know not? I wrote to an Attorney in London, to acquaint him of this base Affair, who sent me word I must make an Affidavit of my not owing him ten Pounds, and he'd foon fet me at Liberty, and accordingly 1 did, and He (the Lawyer) was fummon'd before a Judge, and begg'd time to give in his Anfwer, as he had one to invent, which prolong'd my imprisonment; but upon the next Summons I was set at Liberty, and return'd to my Business, some of which I had lost. This Affair cost me seventy Pounds before I could get out of Goal; but that was nothing to my other I offes arising from being confin'd; it rais'd strange Suspicions, and weaken'd the opinion of my Friends, and prov'd a great check to getting more.

As one Misfortune is commonly fucceeded by another; Dr. Bently was taken Ill of a Pleurify, a Day or two before I was fet at Liberty, who was pleas'd to accept the attendance of a Brother I recommended in my absence; I waited on the Doctor as soon as I had it in my power; Dr. Bently was then under the care of Mr. Professor Plumtree; I was very much concern'd to find my best Friend so very ill, fearing upon the account of his great Age, it wou'd go very hard with him; and as he had enjoy'd fuch good Health fo many Years, and no great Friend to Phyfick, he was not so conformable as the Professor and I could have wish'd; but however, he was judicioufly treated by Dr. Plumtree, and closely attended by myfelf, who was with him night and day 'till Death depriv'd us of this great good Man. This was another very unlucky Circumstance now I had loft my best Friend, who did not only employ me for himself and Family, but for a great many poor People that the World was not acquainted with: The Charities he did with his right Hand, were not known to his left; his Alms were done in Secret that he might be rewarded openly: This good Gentleman every morning during his Illness, order'd me half a Guinea for my Attendance, and befides his paying me handfomely for Medicines, I had a prefent fent of a three Pound-twelve over and above; but these favours were not equal to those I receiv'd from his kind recommendation. The fanction I had, under the Umbrage of this great Man, obtain'd me the Respect and Favours of many: But what cruel misfortunes have rob'd me of all my Hopes, when I have had the greatest Views of well doing? Of all the unlucky incidents of Life, nothing cou'd prove more fatal than the death of Dr. Bently in less than a Fortnight after coming out of Goal; and when I had been but a little more than half a Year fettled at Cambridge, and one month of that in Prison; my great Friend being dead, my interest lessen'd and my Business declin'd; and what prov'd more unfortunate than my being in Goal, I can't help mentioning with the utmost Reluctance (as 'tis fo near a Relation) that my Wife cou'd never fubmit to Misfortunes; but exasperated with the thoughts of being disgrac'd, posses'd with too much Spirit, and too little Patience, which added greatly to my milfortunes, whose noify infolence and imprudent behaviour made us scandalous, hurt my Reputation, lost my Business, and soon reduc'd us to the utmost diffress.

I being advis'd to feek fome redress from the Lawyer, who had used me so unjustly and cruelly, I apply'd to Counsellor Pont, Recorder of Cambridge, who mov'd the Court against him, to shew cause why he sent me to Goal &c, which Mr. Pont did, and afterwards proceeded to bring him to Tryal, which he evaded from Term to Term under various excuses and pretences; and one shift was, that his principal Evidence was on Board a Man of War in some distant Station; and by this and such like evasions, he got a year and half's Time, which occasion'd me several expensive Journeys to London: And after he could put off the Tryal no longer, it was brought on before my Lord chief Justice Lee, in Westminster-Hall, the sittings after Midsummer Term in the Year 1742.

The nature of this Affair betwixt Mr. Jones and myfelf ought to be explain'd before we proceed to tryal, which was thus: This same Attorney being a Coffee House Acquaintance, when that unhappy difference happen'd betwixt Mr. S-n-b-n and myself, which I have before related, went to Mr. S-n-b-n, and some others about my business; and as he undertook to take out a Commisfion of Bankruptcy, and paid half a year's Rent prior to the Commission, and his endeavouring to collect a few Debts &c, brought me in a Demand of fifty Pounds, which demand he brought in under the Statute of Bankruptcy, fign'd my Certificate, and shar'd the same Fate as the rest of my Creditors. After that, he never was concern'd for me upon any account what ever, and confequently had no demand in Law against me; for what he pretended was due, was before the Commission: The Business I had done for him to the amount of twelve Pounds was fince, yet as he was fomething a lofer by me, I never demanded the twelve Pounds due to me fince the Commission, as I thought in Conscience I ought to make him some return, and all other Persons, who had suffer'd by my being a Bankrupt. I never demanded any Money, which I could have done; but voluntarily made them a Present of what Business I did for them afterwards, though flarving at the fame Time.

But to the Tryal; I having in Court prov'd by my Books and Servants my Demand of twelve Pounds; he in defence was to prove his of fifty, and he to give a Sanction to his Action, had procur'd a Note of mine to a Diffiller, of whom I bought Spirits, for about three Pounds, which not being sufficient to overballance my Demand of twelve Pounds, he then instead of proving a Demand for fifty, which he had absolutely swore to, or else could not have sent me to Goal, thought proper to declare for fifteen only, with the help of the Note, as he had hired a Rapper out of the Fleet Prison, to swear he saw him lend me twelve Pounds, which with the Note of three he prov'd to overballance my twelve.

My Lord chief Justice ask'd him if he had no Note for the twelve Pounds, and told him it feem'd odd that after losing Money by me from the Commission, he should directly lend me more and not take a Note for it: He answer'd as it was before Witness, he did not insist upon a Note. This same honest Attorney had so instructed his Evidence; which to make it the more righteous was his own B-th-r, and who did not only fwear to the place and Time, but to the very pieces of Money. O monfrous! that there can be fuch abandon'd graceless Wretches upon Earth! may the great God that bears witness of what I write, and knows the secrets of all Hearts, never pardon me in this World, but condemn me for ever, if it is not as false as I declare it to be. I never before, nor after the Commission, borrow'd one Farthing of him, more than the fifteen Pounds he paid Mr. Berkley my Landord for half a year's Rent prior to the Commission; and at the very time this wicked B-th-r swore he faw him lend me the Money at my House in Hatton-Garden, I was then gone with my Wife's Brother to Sturbitch-Fair, who was scarcely recover'd of a Fever I attended him in. Good God! if this is the Case, what chance doth a Man stand in a Court where fuch Evidences are to be hir'd? But what Confusion! what Terror! what Guilt and Tremors were they both in at the time this Evidence was given? not to mention the Favour a Limb of the Law may receive, he got a Verdict with cost of suit &c; and this prov'd my entire Destruction. By this unjust procur'd Verdict, and upon this account I was oblig'd to fell my Shop and Effects, and to quit Cambridge; and again to be turn'd a drift with my Family to starve. Wou'd not a link of fuch cruelties heightned by domestick Contention drive any Man beyond himself? be ask'd why I am poor? Should it not rather be ask'd? Is not this Man starv'd and out of his Senses? But the God in whom I trust, as those Heroes of old answer'd Nebuchadnezer, the God whom I ferve, and have a stedfast reliance on, is able still to deliver me; but here my fufferings do not end.

The Compassion and Charity of the University were again extended to our relief, and many Gentlemen, especially the present Master of St. John's, Emanuel, the late Master of Peterbouse, and many others, particularly the Fellows of Trinity-College, lay me under the greatest sense of gratitude and thankfulness, and I hope no time will wear out those impressions of Gratitude. those sufferings and a decay of Business; in order to establish me, I wrote a Treatise on intermitting Fevers and Agues, and met with great encourage. ment from the University, and here I am under great

After these Misfortunes, and many fruitless Endeavours, I left my Wife and Children in Lodgings, and went and paid my Compliments to Mr. Oversto, an ingenious Surgeon and Apothecary at Saffron-Walden, and offer'd to affift him in any capacity; for I ever us'd my utmost Endeavours to fupport my Family, which in no diffress I ever forfook; and at any time when degraded from being Mafter, I was content to act as a Servant. Mr. Oversto had at that time receiv'd a Damage by a Fall, and was unable to attend Business; which was in the Year 1744: I flaid some time with him, and did what bufiness he requir'd, and wou'd willingly apply'd for more but as Mr. Oversto had no Children, and only himself and good Mrs. Overfto, and being bleft with an afluent Fortune, he was not anxious after much bufiness; tho' at first, I was in hopes we should in conjunction have acquir'd a Business that wou'd have been of use to us both; but being more at leifure than I wish'd for, I wrote an Essay upon the good and bad Effects of Tea; the Copy of which I fold, to help to support my Family at Cambridge. I hir'd a Horse at Walden, to go to London, and upon my return to Cambridge, I call'd at Bunting-Ford, where I met with one Mr. Reddall, a very ingenious Surgeon and Apothecary, who with very great Success practis'd Midwifry, being also a great Proficient in that Art. This Mr. Reddall treated me with great civility, expressing some concern for my many Misfortunes, and invited me to his House, to stay what time I pleas'd, till something else should offer in my Favour; for which I thank'd him, and promis'd (after taken my leave of Mr. Oversto) to make him a visit. The next Day I set out for Cambridge, but call'd to see my Relations at Gransden, and mounting my Horse to go to Cambridge, he rose upright, and throwing me, sell upon my Leg; it was not broke, but so bruis'd, and in so much pain that I was oblig'd to stay at Gransden six Weeks, at an Expence, besides being prevented going to Cambridge, to stadden and to Bunting-ford, as I had promis'd.

This Accident kept me, with the Horse at Granfden fix Weeks, before I was able to ride; and as foon as I was, I went to Mr. Reddall's, at Bunting-ford, and fent the Horse to Walden. I flaid fome time with Mr. Reddall, and as he had Business in London, I attended his Patients in his Absence; and when Mr. Reddall was in Town, he call'd upon my Wise's Brother, and told him, if he, or any of her Relations, would give my Wife her board a little time, he would put me into a Condition foon of maintaining her and my Children: But her good Brother, in order to excuse himself, and the rest of her Relations, was pleas'd to fay fuch unkind and unjust things of me, which prevented Mr. Reddall, and I, engaging upon fuch beneficial Terms as we had agreed to; and fo I greatly fuffer'd by these unnatural People, that would neither ferve me, themselves, nor let other People. Upon Mr. Reddall's return, I foon after went again to Saffron-Walden, to Mr. Overfto, where I had establish'd a good Esteem amongst the principal Persons in that Neighbourhood, who often often follicited me to fettle there; and if I could not come into measures with Mr. Oversto, to enterupon Bufiness for myself; which I never intended, but propos'd going to fix at Thanflead. But foon after my return to Walden, and while I was attending Business for Mr. Oversto, the Man of whom I hir'd the Horse, arrested me for about fifty-Shillings; and I was kept in Custody, a Day and a Night under the Care of two Bailiffs, fufficiently expos'd to the whole Town and Country; and then my Friend Mr. Overflo was fo kind as to release me. This Man who arrested me, was Mr. Oversto's Tenant, and ow'd Mr. Oversto money at the fame time, and I should have thought dared not have arrested me, without first acquainting him, and obtaining leave, which I have too much reason to suspect was the Case: This affair so blasted me, that I laid aside all thoughts of staying on that fide the Country. I fhan't take upon myself to say what was the intention of my being arrested by Mr. Oversto's Tenant, but shall submit that to the Determination of others, as I was invited to settle at Walden, &c.

My Friend Mr. Reddall, of Bunting-ford, hearing of this Usage, sent a Man and Horse, with an invitation for me to come and stay with him, till something more advantageous should offer; which I accepted, and parted with Mr. Oversto in good Friendship, who very handsomely paid me for the time I was with him, for which I heartily thank'd him. I staid some months with Mr. Reddall, who us'd me with all the Compassion and good Nature I could wish for, and I, in return, did my best for him and his Patients; and had not those unkind People in London, weaken'd the good L 2 Opinion

Opinion he had of me, he proposed covenanting in an advantageous manner for us both, and I was to have taken the physical Practice upon myself, and he the Midwifry and Surgery, both of which he had a great share off; however, this was prevented: I heartily thank him for his Favours and own myself under great Obligations for them, and he will always not only have my thankful Acknowledgements, but my best wishes, as long as we both are inhabitants upon Earth.

I went again to London and waited on Dr. Mead and acquainted him with what Misfortunes I had met with, and ask'd him, if he would please to recommend me any where abroad; he told me he would willingly, but thought it was too late in Life, for me to go into another Climate to die; and said there were many Apothecaries of great Business, that would be glad of my Assistance, and he would have me enquire for such, and he would recommend me.

I then went to Mr Cecil, an Apothecary of good Esteem, in Bloomsbury-Square, and told him I had been to wait on Dr. Mead, and what the Doctor advis'd me to; Mr. Cecil was fo kind as to recommend me to Mr. Braley, a Surgeon and Apothecary, at Mitcham: I told Mr. Cecil (who also waited on Dr. Mead in my behalf) that I had fome thoughts of going to Thanflead in Effex, where I was invited to, but my present unhappy Circumstances would not permit me. He was so kind as to use his Endeavours, with the Assistance of Mr. Davey, an Apotheeary in new North-Street, to raile me a small Sum to enable me to go to Thaxstead; and while I was at Mr. Braley's, he collected me about fix or feven Pounds, for which I am under under the most grateful Obligations, to my worthy Friends Mr. Cecil and Mr. Davey. By this time my poor unhappy temper'd Wife, finding Favours upon the decline at Cambridge; thought proper, unknown to me, to fend two of my Children, one about seven, and the other about five years of Age, to my Sifter at Gransden, and order'd the Meffenger to leave them, whether she was willing or not: My Sifter mov'd with Compassion, took my two poor forfaken Boys in, (who were left crying amongst Strangers) and kept them all Winter, which was a very great hardship upon my Sister, as she could not afford it. My Sifter fent me a Letter of what my Wife had done, and defir'd as foon as poffible. I would fend for them away, or fend fomething for their support; for she had sent to Cambridge to my Wife, who went to London the next Day after she had sent the Children to her. My good Lady's journey to London was as much a fecret to me as her fending my Children to my Sifter's: And after I knew the was in London, her pious old Mother secreted her for above fix Months, before I could find her out. This poor unhappy temper'd Woman, always thought it her Duty, or at least it was her Inclination, to follow the dictates of her Mother, and two Sifters in Crutched-Fryars, who instead of giving her good Advice, have all along encourag'd her to act in opposition to the duty of a Wife, and happiness of an Husband. Neither her expectations from her Brother, nor his good Councels, have been of any Benefit to her and her Family, which altogether have contributed to my Miseries. For her Relations, in order to excuse my Wife, would always blame and use me Ill; and she out of Pride to excuse them, from not being able, or willing willing to affift me, used to blame and reproach me in such a salse Manner, as to make all my Friends

my Foes.

So many Instances of this kind I cou'd produce, as would heighten Aggravations already too great: I shall only fay my Fortune of all kinds far exceeds any I ever read, or heard of; Job's Tryals were neither comparable nor fo lafting as mine. Some young Fellows if they do inadvertently marry, and chance to have no Fortune with their Wives, yet they often amply make it up by a sweetness of Temper, and affectionate Behaviour; always studying the happiness and interest of their Husbands; without which there can be very little real Felicity for either; but they ought both to endeavour the mutual Happiness of each, whereby they may make the most distress'd Circumstances tolerable, and not as fome do, vilify, and reproach, infult, rannife, ever uneafy, ever diffatisfied, perpetually destroying each others Peace, and serenity of Mind, and aggravating each other's Diffress; and what a shocking Folly and Madness is it, when a Wife, to gratify a vile Spirit, will flick at nothing, be it ever to base and salse, to vilify and and destroy the reputation of her Husband, tho' she knows his, her own and Childrens Bread depend upon it? But where Tempers are not fo agreeable as could be wish'd for, those Evils are in some Degree alleviated by Money. And some others, whose hard Fortune it is to miss of both good Tempers and Money, frequently have great Favours and helps from their Wife's Relations, who do not only relieve them when diffres'd, but will forward and promote their Interest: Some Men have made their Fortunes by marrying into Families, who have made it their delight to recommend mend and promote them: But where a Man with no Fortune of his own, gets none with his Wife, and is without the affectionate Friendship he might reasonable hope for, both from her, and her Relations; nay instead of such Advantages, finds them act upon opposite Principles, and quite repugnant to his Interest; where he has a large Family to support, towards which, all his Endeavours are by cruelty, and oppression, render'd unsuccessful, and in the decline of Life is reduc'd to want the common Comforts and Support thereof; which diftreffes, befides the insolence and difrespect from abroad, are heighten'd by domestick Strife, Noise and Contention; good God! where shall we meet with a Job who can bear it? I endeavour to do juffice to all, by whom I have fuffer'd, by relating their Friendship, as well as their Cruelties; so I shall do justice to a Wife, no Man can more regard. What I have faid about her, is with the utmost regret; yet I could not clear up some reproach, and sufpicion, without owning she is not blest with the best of Tempers; she is a very genteel, well behav'd Woman to every one but her Husband; she is certainly a notable, clean, industrious Woman; and was her Temper agreeable to her Person, she would make a Husband compleatly happy; and if after thirty-one Years, she should alter and behave in a mild affectionate Manner, nothing could be more pleafing, but I have hop'd for this fo long, that I have but little Hope left.

She has one Sister, who is both an agreeable Woman, and a dutiful affectionate Wise, who agreeable to Scripture, farfook Father and Mother and cleav'd to her Husband, and they two became one Flesh, one Heart and one Mind; and may

may they always continue fo to do for their own Comfort, and the Happiness of their Children; tho' this good Woman fuffer'd fometime the Difpleafure of her pious Parents for adhering to the Duty of a Wife, and a Mother. But to return; I flaid at Mitcham two or three months; all the time Mr. Braley had occasion for my Assistance, for which he very handsomely rewarded me. During the time I was at Mitcham, Mr. Cecil and Mr. Davey, collected me about fix Pounds, as I before mention'd, with a List of my Benefactors, to whom I return my thanks; Mr. Cecil went with me to Dr. Mead, who faid, it was a very small Sum for a Man to set off with amongst Strangers; and the Doctor was fo good as to renew his Favours, by giving me a Guinea, with his good wishes, and the following Recommendation.

I have known Mr. Simon Mason, Apothecary, many Years, and have always found him to be an honest, industrious Man, and well qualified for his Bufiness.

February the 7th. 1745,7.

R. Mead. (M. Schomberg.

As I had been long known to Dr. Schomberg, I also waited on him, who readily fign'd my Recommendation, treated me with great civility, and made me a handsome Present; he, amongst my other Friends has a just Claim to my Gratitude.

As Dr. Mead thought the Sum which my Friends had rais'd me too little to make any attempts in going to Thanftead upon my own footing; I went to see my two naked Boys at my Sifter's, and carried them Cloaths and other Necessaries: They were highly rejoic'd to see me, which joy was too soon turn'd to grief, for sear of my leaving them. Such as have no Children, and even those that have, and have not the same Compassion for them, can't here share my Distress, for I at all times and places ever had the greatest Affection and Concern for my Family, whom I never forsook, but ever strove in all conditions of Life, to do my utmost for them; whereas, many who have not the same care and love for their Families, wou'd have run from, and left them to shift for themselves, but this was never in my Power to do, however requited for it.

I won't fay (after that I was admitted to a conference with my Lady at her Sifter Cheshire's upon Tower-Hill,) what her behaviour was to me, I leave that to her Sifter; and after I was permitted to know where the lodg'd, and went to wait on her, I shall be filent in the reception I met with; neither need I fay I was oblig'd to take a Lodging for myfelf, not being permitted to be with her, for fear of disobliging her pious Relations. This was after my return from my two melancholly Boys, whom I had cloath'd and paid fomething towards their board; and when I came to Town, I was fo much reduc'd, that I had not above ten Shillings to feek my Fortune with, and my good Sifter Winsmore's Husband being dead, she had left of business and I had no place of refuge.

I had almost forgot to mention after I came from Mr. Reddall's at Bunting-ford, that I went to see my most stedfast, valuable Friend, and that generous hospitable Gentleman Mr. John Cross, Rector of Long-stown in Cambridgeshire, whom I knew I should greatly anger, was I to speak of half the particulars of his Goodness, with whom I liv'd some time, and was entertain'd with the utmost humanity and compassion, besides many other proofs of his lafting Goodness, by some known to this day, and my filent Gratitude is only known to the Searcher of Hearts. After my return to London, I lodg'd upon Tower-Hill, and receiv'd some friendships from my Brother-in-law Mr. Cheshire, which I gratefully regard, who also recommended me to some practice, and where I contracted an Acquaintance with many Gentlemen of the Army, from whom I receiv'd more Acts of Friendship, than I could have expected; but the ill nature and malice of my good Father-in-law, and his Confort &c, knowing I was pretty often at his Son Cheshire's, and finding I pick'd up a small, tho' an uncomfortable living, infifted that his Son Chelhire should forbid me coming to his House, which Mr. Cheshire was forc'd unwillingly to comply with: Such was the malice of this good Father-in-law, that I was forc'd to shift my Quarters, to the Stone-Kitchen in the Tower, where I was most kindly treated: But still this was an unhappy fettl'd Life; I, in one Lodging, my good Wife, in another, and my Children, at the Parish; altogether almost depriv'd me of my Senses, for my little narrow Way of Business was scarcely sufficient to keep me, in a State of Existence, much less to pay for my Childrens Board; and my Wife's Relations, not being willing to contribute one Farthing to fave them from the Parish. My Sister was oblig'd to send them to the Parish they belong'd to at Cambridge, who took them and put them to Board, where they were well taken care of, for which I am very thankful.

thankful. This Circumstance of sending my Children to the Parish, (however it might sit upon the Breast of my Wife) gave me the utmost concern; I can't think it was matter of Satisfaction to her, what ever it was to some of her unkind Relations; and this is a Paradox to me, that she can justify the cruelty of her Relations to her own Children: I think if they had never fo great a diflike to me, as my Wife is their Relation, upon her account, the poor innocent Children, should not have been excluded from the tender Compassion of a Parent. But my two Boys being upon the Parish, was the Occasion of my being admitted to an Audience with my Lady, when I propos'd taking a little House at Mile-End, to be near my Acquaintance in the Tower, and not far from my Wife's kind Relations, and to fend for my Children, which accordingly I did.

About this time, it being in the Year 1747, the Diftemper amongst the horn'd Cattle was very predominant: I made a strict Application to confider the Nature of this mortal Illness, and the method of treating it; and found it to be a contagious inflammatory Diforder, most refembling the human Species of a Pleurify, attended by different Symptoms, till a Crisis was form'd to throw off the febrile Cause by purging, which matter being of fo virulent, and corrofive a Nature, that it did not only rob the Gutts of their Mucus, but excoriated them, which ulcerated and turn'd to a Mortification, and terminated in Death. I had brought my notions to fuch a Certainty by frequent obfervation and reflection, that I thought, I had not only discover'd the Nature of this Disorder, but an effectual Way of treating it, and I advertis'd to M 2 cure this Distemper for twenty Shillings per Cow,

I was first employ'd by Mr. Bucton, a great Cow-keeper near Islington, who had lost some hundreds of Cows, and not above one in ten got thro' the Diftemper; I covenanted with him and cur'd either fourteen or fifteen out of twenty, which recommended me into great practice of that kind; and I had more Success than any Ferson that had attempted to cure them: I really thought I should have acquir'd a certain and effectual method of curing them, and offer'd propofals to fome great Men to give me a tryal by fuch a Number, and represented in some measure the Nature of the Illness, and what Success I had met with, and how it ought to be treated, but my obscurity in life gain'd me no notice nor encouragement, and then I dropt this practice.

The next thing offer'd, was an Advertisement for a Man who understood the Business of an Apothecary, and was capable of vifiting Patients, who for further information was to apply to Mr. Smith, Chymist at Smithfield-Bars; this Mr. Smith, when I liv'd in Hatton-Garden, was Journeyman to Mr. Pead, a Chymist, the very next Door to me; when I went to Mr. Smith, to enquire after this Place, he was exceeding glad to fee me, and did not think I wanted it for myfelf; but when I told him that the many cruel and unfortunate Events of my Life had reduc'd me, and that it was for myself I apply'd, and beg'd his Friendship in securing the Place for me; this he readily promis'd me, and accordingly did, which brought me to Market-Harborough in Leicestersbire, February the 18th,

I was directed by Mr Smith to one Mr B-r-na Surgeon and Apothecary of that Town, whom I fent for to the Swan; He told me he was going to fucceed an Apothecary at Leicester, and wanted a Person qualified to take care of his Shop and Business at Harborough, and I was recommended by Mr. Smith as Tuch; I answer'd, I had been known fome Years to Mr Smith when I was in a preferable Situation; he faid he hop'd I should meet with things to my Satisfaction, and he was much better pleased that Mr. Smith had sent him a Person of fome Years, than a young Man, as I shou'd be more capable, and more fatisfactory to his Friends: He ask'd me if I went to the Meeting, I told him, no; he faid he was forry for that, as most of his Patients belonging to that Shop did; he had no other objection, than he fear'd that unless I went to the Meeting, we should lose some of the Business, I reply'd. rather than we should lose the Business, I would go to the Meeting till I had effablish'd myself amongst them, and the next Day we came to an Agreement, and he was to give me half a Guinea a Week, with board, washing, and lodging &c. which Agreement we both fign'd

In the evening came Mr. Johnson the dissenting Minister, a very good fort of a Gentleman, who was neither ignorant, nor reserv'd enough to please some of the rigid ones; I told Mr. Johnson at the same time I was inform'd by Mr. B-n that unless I went to the Meeting we should lose most of our Business, that II was really bred up to the Church of England, which worship I have always adher'd to; and I think I ought not to deceive you, either by telling you I am a Dissenter, or by my going to the Meeting; he said I did very right to speak so candidly, and he should have the better opinion of me; he believed fome Perfons would have lik'd me better, was I of the same way of thinking with them, but for his part, it wou'd make no Difference, and honeftly faid, he would not have me upon any view of Interest go to the Meeting, tho' my not doing it, would be an hindrance to our Business: I told him as I was a perfect Stranger and came to serve Mr. B-n, I thought it at present most adviseable to establish myself in the good Esteem of those I was to be employ'd by, and with his leave I shou'd come and behave decently amongst them, and if I lik'd their way of ferving God better than the Church of England, I should continue, otherwife he'd excuse me if I return'd to the Church; he faid every Man ought to follow the dictates of his own Conscience; accordingly I attended their Meeting, and fometimes when out of Town, I went to Church, and thought I did right to make some set of People my Friends, who shew'd me respect and civility.

I had not acted in the capacity of a Journeyman more than two months, before my new Master (discovering my general reception and approbation) offer'd me Partnership, and we drew up an agreement for that Purpose, by which agreement his Attorney well knows I cou'd have taken great Advantage of, had I been unjustly inclin'd: Soon after this engagement, by the advice of his Friends, he offer'd me the Shop and Business, and to let me the House at the same Rent, and for the same time he had to come; we agreed and he sold me the Shop, Medicines, Druggs, and Utensils, and let me the House, and once more I was Master for myself. It seems he had been treating with an Apothecary of the same same Town before I was sent for, and they cou'd not agree; finding I had got the Shop and Business, and was likely to have more, it occasion'd the soul

Play as I shall relate as it falls in Turn.

I agreed with this same Apothecary for the Shop and some Household-Goods; to the amount of one hundred Pounds, to be paid at four equal diffinct payments, the first to be paid the Harborough Fair following, (this being made in May 1748,) and the other three payments were all to be paid in about a Year and half; for which purpole, Articles were made, which we executed, and his Attorney had made them with this Proviso, that upon five days default after the time fix't for payment of the first, or any other payments, the contract was to be void, and he should have it in his Power, to re'enter, feize, carry away, and dispose of the Effects, 'till he was paid the remaining part of what was due. This was a pretty hard engagement, yet from the Bufiness I had, and the good Prospect of more, I was under no apprehensions of not making good my payments, and this good Prospect induc'd me once more to fend for my Wife and Children. After they came, we liv'd very comfortably for about fix Weeks, when she began to behave in such an infolent, noify, tyrannical manner, as no one can conceive, which did me a great Prejudice, but proved lucky for Mr. C--s to renew his application in behalf of his Son, for he well knew that unless some advantages could be gain'd by these imprudences, I should soon make good my Purchase, and get into more Business than was consistent with their Interests; then this worthy conscientious Brother of mine, renew'd the Attack, and offer'd much more Money for the Shop than I had agreed for, and to pay it all down, in case he cou'd disengage himself from the agreement made with me; this was a strong Temptation to a Man who wanted the Money to pay for the Shop he had bought: Added to these, our domestick Contentions, which he thought would be a great check to the Bufiness I had; and it was, in all probability, these considerations, with the Money paid down, whichoccasion'd Mr. B--n to listen to the new Proposals of Mr. C--s; and then, ways and means were confulted, how to dispossess me, and to get the Goods again; all this I knew nothing of, but I was taking the utmost pains to make good my first payment, by a strict affiduity in Business. When an unlucky Circumstance happening, did me hurt with some of my Patients, and gave them an handle to fide with Mr. B--n to use me as he did.

One Sunday Mr. Bigland of Peterborough, came to the three Crowns at Harborough, and ask'd Mr. Sollers if I did not live there; he told him yes; Mr. Bigland then defir'd he'd fend for me; Mr. Sollers answer'd he'd send for me, if he pleased, but he was fure I would not come to a publick-House of a Sunday; why fo, reply'd Mr. Bigland, why don't you know he's a Diffenter, and they won't come out of a Sunday; I faw him go by fince you have been here, from the Meeting; which made the Gertleman in a Passion, and order'd directly I might be fent for, and faid I was no Diffenter, and would come if they told me his Name; I was fent for, and went to wait on Mr. Bigland, who made fuch a Discovery that I was from that very time look'd upon as a false Brother.

Harborough Fair being come, I saw Mr. B--n and told him the first payment would be due in a few Days, but if he wanted any Money, I could then help him to some, and if he would give me an order, I would pay Mr. Talbot ten Founds for rent, and the little more that was wanting, I would pay within the time, to make up the first payment. He faid, no; he should be at Harborough again in about a Week, and he with fome of his Friends would meet me, and fettle: Mr. Marston, who was one in company, promis'd to give us the Night fix'd upon, a fat Pig for supper, which was agreed to, and we all confented to meet at the time appointed at that very House; little distrusting what was contriving for my destruction. The time fix'd being come, I went to meet according to promife, but neither my Gentleman, nor any of his Friends were there, no Pig, nor any fign of a Supper; I ask'd the Landlord after Mr. B--n and he had heard nothing of him, nor the fat Pig. I return'd, imagining some Business might have prevented his coming, never mistrusting what was in agitation.

About a Week after the time appointed, (being five Days) and five Days only over and above the twelve, which he staid away on purpose to take the advantage of this default, when the default was plainly of his own making, and absolutely contarary to my inclination, and express'd appointment; he then came and brought two Bailists with him, whom he put into Possession; I was at the same Time gone to Farndon, (about one Mile from Harborough,) and upon my return home, met a Messenger, who told me what was done, and to prevent his arresting me, I went to little Bowden, (it being out of that County,) fearing that since he had so treacherously acted by me, he would stick at nothing to compleat his cruelty. I sent to Mr. Marston, to tell Mr. B--n I desir'd to speak with him before any thing was done, which he refus'd, and never came to me. The next Day Mr. Marston went with me to his Attorney, to talk with him about this Affair, and at last, we concluded to meet on Sunday to see if this Matter could be compromis'd. The Attorney promis'd the Goods should remain unremov'd upon the Premisses, till the result of this Meeting: My Friend Mr. Marfton, and I, took our leaves of this good Gentleman, relying upon his Fidelity, and I return'd to little Bowden; but on Saturday Night in violation of that promise, about eleven, a Ferson came to tell me Mr. B-n with his Affiftants was pulling down, and carrying away, both the Shop and Household-goods, and had, at Midnight pull'd my Children out of Bed and laid them upon the Floor without a Rag to cover them, and had taken every individual thing and had left none of them a Bed to lie on.

Can it be thought in a Christian Country, any thing fo base, so cruel and barbarous, would be transacted after so many pretensions of Friendship by one who pitied me, on the Account he had receiv'd of my former Sufferings from cruelty and oppression? Was he not convinc'd of my Diligence and Integrity? Had he discover'd any thing to have rais'd a Suspicion of my Fidelity, he would have been more excufable? But the Recommendation he had from Mr. Smith, and the Character he receiv'd in answer to a Letter, he sent unknown to me, to Dr. Mead, which he shew'd to many Persons in Harborough; and declar'd at the fame Time he would have given an hundred Pounds for the same Character, from so great a Man;

Man; I fay, had I in any Degree forfeited these Testimonials, then he might have had a greater Plea for his Cruelties; but such continued Missortunes as these, sometimes incline me to think that all events are determin'd by an irresistable Fate.

To return; we were stript and nothing lest but bare Walls, yet I thought proper to keep Possession, as a Gentleman to whom I apply'd, advis'd; and told me he'd make him glad to bring every thing back again, and make me Satisfaction for such illegal Practice, for he did not only take those things I had bought of him, but many more my Family had brought, and others I had bought; besides many valuable Medicines I had made, and added to Stock. But I being thus reduc'd in a strange Place, was oblig'd (without redress) to submit to these barbarities.

After feveral delufive attempts, by fending false messuages for me, first to one Place, and my Wife to another, in order to take Poffession and lock us into the Street; he by the Advice of some ruling Puritans, apply'd to a Justice in regard to my fettlement, tho' I was absolutely a Parishioner by hiring upwards of ten Pounds per Year; however, a Warrant was granted, and without time or notice I was hurried before a Justice, about fifteen Miles distant, escorted by a Guard, as if I had been taken up for a Highway-man, and when I came before his Worship, I gave him such an Account, and produc'd my Contract for rent, and shew'd him my Credentials from Dr. Mead, and Dr. Schomberg, that I receiv'd better utage then they defir'd; and they could that time meet with no great hopes of obtaining their End. But foon a fecond Application was made by a worthy Gentleman, man, who in regard to his Memory I shall fay was the good Mr. David Kidney: He with some more leading Saints, got me again before his Worship; and twice more in obedience to Warrants, I was had before a Justice, in the midst of Winter, about fifteen Miles; who at last could do nothing to ferve his good Friends. They afterwards told me, I should oblige the Parish by giving them a Certificate; which I accordingly did, and left the dispute betwixt B--n and myself, to arbitration: Mr. Harper allow'd me a year's Rent and feven Pounds, and for peace fake, I quitted the Premises, and gave him Possession, to take in the Person who had supplanted me; but had it been in my Power, to have brought this Affair before a Judge and Jury, my Antagonist and false Friend must have paid smart for his deceit and cruelty.

After this, I took a little House, but had neither House-hold nor Shop-Goods to put into it; I being defir'd by fome Friends, who had employ'd me to continue amongst them, and altho' the Person had got the Shop by fuch unfair proceedings, I retain'd some Business and got some sew Shop-Goods, and wrote to Mr. Sawtell, an Apothecary in London, who directly fent me a Quantity of all Sorts of useful Druggs and Medicines, for which I shall ever own my Gratitude. By this supply I got more Business, but my Practice was chiefly amongst Incurables, or at least what had been so with others; and begging Pardon of my judicious Brethren of Harborough, I fay, I have cur'd Patients after every one of them have fail'd; and I defie them all to produce one Instance of their curing any one after me, and was I to declare what

fuccess I have had fince I have been in this Country about five Years, it will look like boasting; but I desire if they can find out among a number of three or four hundred People, that have been under my care, that more than thirty have died, or gone away uncur'd; or if any one of them have cur'd one after me, where I had a fair chance.

Among my difficult Patients, I beg leave (in regard to a Gentleman from London, that did me a Favour) to mention Mr. Freeman of Lutterworth, who had been a long time afflicted with a nervous diforder, and had apply'd to feveral, both in London, and in the Country, and at a great expence to no purpose; whom afterwards I soon cur'd. This same Gentleman had a Relation in London, whose care Mr. Freeman (some little time before) had been under, and seeing him so well recover'd, he ask'd him who had cur'd him; he reply'd, it was me, and said how hardly I had been used, and how greatly I was reduc'd, yet he believed, could I meet with a Friend to assist me with some Medicines, I should still come into Business.

This same Apothecary came in a Day or two, with Mr. Freeman to Harborough, and call'd upon me, and ask'd me if I wanted any thing in his way, and he would readily supply me: I told him I had occasion enough, but my present Circumstances were such, that I could not desire him to give me credit, as I fear'd much, whether I should ever be able to pay him; he answer'd, he knew my Circumstances before he came, and found I had been ill used, and deserving of encouragement, which he came to give me; and said Mr. Freeman had spoke very handsomely of me and sent him to me, and he desired I would give him an account of what I wanted wanted, and he shou'd send me the Goods the week sollowing; tho' he told me, a certain Apothecary (who had been instrumental in getting me out of the other Shop) had said all he could to distwade him from sending me any thing; which he look'd upon as malice, and should not regard him; he accordingly, the next Week, sent me as many Goods as I wanted, and exceeding good; this was in March

The good Apothecaries of Harborough, whose Friendship and judgment I equally esteem, and are equally furprifing; feeing I had got a fupply of Medicines, and was likely to get into Business; knowing I had a Bond in Mr. Hall's Hands, a Druggist in London, (due for Medicines when I was last demolish'd at Cambridge) for fourteen Pounds, took the pains to write Mr. Hall word, that I was fettled at Harborough in good Business, and lately had a supply of Medicines &c. from London, and now was his time to be paid: Upon this information, Mr. Hall taking it ill, I had Medicines of any one elfe; (tho' he at the fame time would not trust me for any) directly arrested me, and fent me to Leicester-Goal, which answer'd my kind brethren's desire; this being two or three Days before the new Fair, that it might the more effectually be spread about the Country: In Leicester-Goal I was confin'd about two Months, till Mr. Hall was fully fatisfy'd about the malicious Representations, and nature of the whole Affair, when he order'd me out of Custody.

The Friendship I met with from Strangers while I was in Goal, I ought never to forget; and what introduc'd me so much to their Compassion, was, there happen'd at that time a very malignant Fever in the Prison,

Prison, that was very satal in many other Prisons in this Kingdom at the very same Time: The next Day after my admission, I went to see the Persons that were afflicted with this Illness, and told Mr. Lambert, the Goal-Keeper, if he would give me leave, I would soon recover those that were ill, and prevent it spreading; Mr. Lambert readily agreeing to it, I quickly clear'd the Goal of an Illness, which had made such a noise in the Town and Country, and made People searful of coming near it; nay, this illness happening at the Assizes, the Judge was assaid to try the Felons, till I had certified to his Lordship, that the Goal was intirely free'd from the Illness.

My Practice being so successful in Goal, it brought me some Patients out of the Town, and raised me the Compassion and Benevolence of several Gentlemen; for which I am in duty bound to be thankful to Mr. Recorder Wright, Mr. Wynstanly, Mr. Franks, Mr. Pine, Mr. Walter Crompon, with the Benevolence of Mr. Alderman Lee, and I should be ungenerous to forget the genteel behaviour of Mr. Lambert; and to all I own myself under great Obligations.

By my Harborough Friends, my Landlord was fent for whilft I was in Goal, in order to compleat my Destruction, to seize for his Rent, when only one Quarter was due, for which he seiz'd, and was paid; another Quarter would about a fortnight more become due, for which he staid, and seiz'd also; and as soon as I came out, I paid that too: These were comfortable additions to my consinement and loss of Business; every contrivance was put in execution to destroy me, and when I return'd to starving without ever a Bed to lie on, for I solemnly declare it, that we all lay upon a Matt, without a Bed for near two Years, how many cold winter Days and Nights, have we fat without Fire and Candle, and often not able to get more than a penny Loaf among four of us, for a whole Day's support, with a draught of Water.

In this miserable Condition, have I spent many days and nights, in a merciles Place, almost drove to despair, and these Circumstances aggravated with noise, insolence, and contention; how often have I wish'd somebody would send me to Goal! there I thought I should have the Goal-allowance in Peace, and if my poor Children had been sent to the Parish, they would have fared much better.

Notwithstanding all these Hardships, as I had fix'd a good reputation in Practice, I was in hopes of feeing better times; and in order to frem this torrent of Perfecution, by the advice of a Gentleman, I hir'd a House of one Smith, a Baker, for which I covenanted for ten Pounds a Year, and gave him earnest for the same House before Witness, which we spent as such; and as my Circumstances were low, he let it me upon paying the first half year's-Rent down, when taking possession. This contract being known, fet my Adversaries again to work, and Smith prefently was threatned in case he let me have his House, one Apothecary would turn him off, and fuch an Inn he should not serve with Bread &c. that the poor Baker at all events, must not let me have the House, but he was oblig'd to let it to another Person, whom he put in possession; and these Persons who had insisted upon his not letting me have the House, promised to indemnify him in case I should demand my contract. I being disappointed of the House, and wore out with cruelty and

and oppression, and almost starv'd, I made application to teach the Free-School then vacant; but by fome righteous good Gentlemen, that also was deny'd me, and oblig'd me to leave Harborough; and upon the death of Mr. Ireland, I, by the better fort of People was invited to come to Wilbarston, with great affurances of Friendship and Business; and to this Town of Wilbarston, I came in November, 1751; but thought it most adviseable to leave my Wise at Harborough, almost a Year, at a great expence, in order fo to establish myself, as not to suffer by any imprudence she might commit: One Day I was relating the disappointments I met with from Smith (which oblig'd me to leave Harborough just as the fmall-pox broke out, and I was likely to come into good Business) to Mr. Dexter, whom I by chance met with at Mr. Parker's; he was of opinion, that if I could prove my contract, and if according to that contract, I made a tender of five Pounds upon the Day fixt, and demanded Possession, Smith would be glad to give it to me, or make me some satisfaction; which I approv'd, and was determin'd it should be done, and accordingly a tender was made, and poffession demanded, which Smith refus'd, calling me poor beggarly Dog, and fet me at defiance. &c.

This gave Smith some uneasiness, notwithstanding some had promised to indemnify him, which brought him over, with his neighbour S. N--t, in order to compromise this affair, and we shou'd have done it much better for us both, had his Friend agreed to it, as Mr. Green proposed, that Smith shou'd give me five Guineas, and pay my Attorney, and give each other an acquittance; which I would have agreed to, but Smith's Friend took him away; I was bid to do my worst; and I by advice brought my

Action, and Smith, thinking as I was poor, I must drop it, oblig'd me to proceed in order for Tryal, which I did by the kind affiftance of fome Friends, who defire not to be mention'd; and before the Tryal, which was last march was twelve-months, my material Evidence was making a vifit, and could not be met with, to avoid being fubpœne'd; which put off our Tryal for that Affizes: This contrivance to evade coming to Tryal, did not fully answer their defigns; but in order to take an advantage of not trying the Caufe, put out of my power to try, by fending my Evidence out of the way; yet they were fo good to move in order to get me fent to Goal, and had done it too, had not I immediately fent up Affidavits to prove their fending my Evidence out of the way; very righteous indeed! After all this treatment, I was obliged to wait till the fummer Affizes following, when care was taken, to fubpæna this Evidence in time; but before the Affizes, they thought proper to apply for Terms, and I, well remembring how greatly I had fuffer'd before, by a false witness; it gave me a mean opinion of trufting to fuch uncertain events: And in obedience to some Gentlemen who wish'd me well, I left it to reference, and my Referee, after I had given him a power to act, told me he should insist upon my paying a small demand to his Relation, and that I should give him a discharge for mine, and was in a great Passion; from such a Friend, I could have but imall hopes.

But the two Arbitrators not agreeing, they fix'd upon a third, who absolutely advised me to hire the House; and when Smith first began to play loose, he blam'd him, complaining all along of the illegality of their Proceedings, and what Damages I ought to have; and was it left to him, I shou'd have too. But good Lord! how soon we frail Creatures, may alter our Opinions; for after it was solely left to him, I had twelve Pounds allow'd me, instead of an hundred, and I was to pay my Attorney out of that; and instead of having great satisfaction made me, I, and my Priends with one expence or other, are better than thirty Pounds out of Pocket; and I don't doubt but it cost him above twice the Sum; and those Persons who prompted him on to distress me, got their ends by driving me from Harborough, yet they were at no part of the expence, for Smith was at the whole.

This Law-fuit in my little Business here, is as hard upon me, as the Bakruptcy was in London; for besides the Expence, loss of time and Business, I am working out Debts, which I contracted to carry on this Law-fuit, whereby I am reduc'd to ftarving. Added to these great Missortunes, I brought my Wife and Children to Wilbarston, little better than a Year fince, whose imprudent conduct being the same as else where, I have lost most of my Bufiness, and am reduc'd in a merciles Place, to the greatest distress, where I have none to help me: I should be guilty of the greatest ingratitude, did I not with thankfulness acknowledge the goodness of a valuable Friend lately deceas'd, whose Favours and good intentions, I shall always retain a grateful remembrance of; and and am heartily forry for his death; and the more so, because some little incidents just before happen'd, to leffen his Friendship.

I am in duty bound most particularly to acknowledge the many Favours I have received from that worthy Gentleman, Thomas Medlycott E/q; who has treated me with great compassion and humanity, which very much softens the rough usage, I met with from fome; and the countenance he is pleas'd to flew me, gives me that fanction which makes others more inclin'd, from his great Example, to shew me civility and respect. The Character the late Dr. Wallis was pleas'd to give of me to Mr. Medlycott, I shall leave for that Gentleman to anfwer, being too strong for me to relate myself. As for some I live amongst, what Business I do for them, if I get no Money of them, I think myself well off if I am only abus'd, and not beat into the Bargain; and was I not under the umbrage of this good Gentleman, I should not be able to bear up against such abuse, and insolence. I hope, tho' some pains have been taken to rob me of his Favours, and Protection, none will fucceed to deprive me of his Compassion and Friendship, which can only encourage me to strive even against hope.

Some false Brothers, who still think me too near them, are as affiduous to prevent my falling under the Cognizance of some very worthy good Families, and are too forward in saying ill-natur'd, unkind things, to asperse me, which I hope time will remove, and obtain me their Favours, when the truths, I impartially state, come to be known.

And farther to fatisfy that Gentleman, who is furpris'd, that I should be in such Distress at this Time of Life, I shall after relating the many cruel and unfortunate Events of my Life, beg leave to inform the Reader, what (ever since I have acted for myself,) has been my Practice; which is, when I am sent for to a Patient, I first endeavour to the utmost of my Power to inform myself of the true nature of the Illness, and the Symptoms which attend, and which way Nature indicates for relief, and to act in consort with those indications;

tions; consider well the difference of Age, Sex, and Conflitutions; and after these observations, with some few reflections, I give such Medicines as are most likely to be successful, and not to be too much in a hurry. If my Discoveries are not quite fatisfactory, (but in chronic cases especially) I wait till I can acquire a more certain Knowledge of the Illness, and to give no other, nor no more Medicines, than what I really think will be ferviceable, and are absolutely wanted; and never prolong an illness, but to hasten a cure as fast as is confistent with fafety: And as foon as I think my Patient out of Danger, I then abate in my Doses, and make it up by proper directions of Diet, &c. And when I am convinc'd in my own Mind, (as in some Cases) no relief is to be had. I give no Medicines at all, and don't amuse them with false hopes, only to pick their Pockets; and where there are some reasons to hope a few Medicines may be helpful, after I have try'd those Medicines, and find no benefit; neither do I know any other, I have greater reason to believe will fucceed; I always tell them fo, and decline giving any; and not as fome Perfons, whom I have known to load their Patients with great Quantities, several Days; nay Weeks and Months, to the last Moment of their Lives, when there has been no poffibility of being beneficial, only to themselves; which Practice I look upon to be cruel, and unjust; and that Man who acts with Judgment and Justice, in my humble Opinion, is to be prefer'd to him who has only his own Interest in View, which is chiefly supported by flattery and deceit: Yet in general that Man meets with the most Encouragement and Fayour, whose talent excells in pleasing the

the Tempers of his Patients, more than in curing their Distempers; and by my refusing to give Medicines, when I was convinc'd they could be of no use to my Patients, I have greatly suffer'd. If Persons would act according to the Rules I have related, the Question, why they are poor, might be put to many? But by such a Practice, attended with so much cruelty and oppication, with so many unfortunate incidents of Life and a numerous Family, atque tali Uxore tyrannica, who can be rich?

Had I been poffes'd of a large Fortune of my own, or got one with my Wife, and spent it in Whoring, Gaming &c? Had I been negligent, or extravagant, and thereby reduc'd myfelf, or had I had a proper time allow'd by those who first shew'd me favours, or had I been affished with Money, to have paid for those purchases I had upon credit, at great difadvantages, I believe I should have flood my Ground, as well as some others, and escap'd many hardships and difficulties I have suffer'd? Was I to rehearte fome particulars with their aggravating Circumstances, which prudence and charity forbid me, who would be furpris'd at my Poverty, and unmov'd at my Diffres? But the unprejudic'd Reader, from what I have faid, will be convine'd that the whole of my Life, from my Birth to this Day, has been one continu'd Chain of Afflictions.

How often have I been tantaliz'd with the vain Hopes of Success, and as often by some unforeseen cruel events, have I been disappointed of my Hopes, and suddenly brought into the utmost Distress! and had I not, in the many vicissitudes of Life, been providentially assisted by some good and charitable Persons,

Persons, I could not alternately have suffer'd these various Events of Fortune; and altho', the Friendships I have so frequently met with, have in some degree alleviated my Distresses, they seem'd by their subsequents, as if design'd to put me into a condition only of fuffering more.

Thus as a long feries of some good, but much the greater Share of bad Fortune, attended all my endeavours, and wore-out the best of my time in Mitery and Distress; and after all these sufferings I have undergone, to be now destitute of the common supports and comforts of Life, and not only so distress'd, but daily reproach'd and insulted by those who have not sense enough to be civil, nor compassion enough to be humane!

May these melancholy Considerations, with the many cruel Disappointments of my honest and assiduous Endeavours, move the pity of the Good and Great, and may they be assured that all the most pressing distresses of my Life, never could force me to take any dishonest, illegal measures to extricate myself; and I never deceiv'd any of those who first shew'd me favour, but told them the worst of my Circumstances, and I have often resus'd credit, when offer'd me, fearing I should not be able to make a just Satisfaction.

Besides the many Cruelties and Hardships I have met with, I have been often blam'd for faults I never was guilty of; some have reproach'd me with being a bad Husband and Father, with having spent that little I got, and starv'd my Family. But how often, (when I could get nothing by Business or Friends) being sensibly touch'd and most grievously affected with the hungry Cries of my Children, have I stript the Coat off my Back, and fent it to borrow Money upon, to buy them Bread! How many, that have done it for me, can bear witness of what I say! and at the same Time I have been insulted and villisted for it, by such as ought most thankfully to have regarded my Compassion to them.

How often have I been aspers'd, for being a Drunkard! I appeal to the Gentlemen, and Neighbours who are daily conversant with me, if ever, Night, or Day, they have fent for me, they have found me in Liquor, or at any other time, have feen me so; and who have often told me, that before they knew me, what a Drunkard I was reprefented to be, which had hindred many from employing me; and Some have maliciously reported, to hinder my Business, that I was very extravagant in my Bills; when I can prove, I have not had for these five Years past, four Bills exceeding forty Shillings, where I have attended, for Journeys, and gave Medicines, for fix Weeks or two Months; nay, I have had very few demands that have exceeded ten Shillings, but most under: A Person whom I lately cur'd of a Pleurify, who paid me about twelve Shillings for it, faid he had no fault to find with me, only that I did too little for Money; that is, I don't prolong a flight cold, and make it a bad Fever, and keep them in pain and mifery for a Month, but get them well in three or four Days or a Week, for which they really think I deserve little or nothing.

The other Day, a story was industriously spread about the Country to my prejudice, which I shall relate: One George Wignall of Ashley in Northampon-shire, sent for me to his Wise, who was taken with a fit of the Palsey; I bled her and ap-

plied five or fix Blifters, and gave her warm cordial flimulating Medicines, after some brisk purges; and attended her every Day, continuing to give her fuch Medicines as I thought proper for a Fortnight. in which time she greatly recovered, and got down Stairs with her Family; I call'd one Day to see her. and as the was a very gross Woman, and this paralytic Diforder proceeded from a ftrong Scurvy, which afterwards was rheumatic, and finding upon her Recovery, by eating and drinking too freely, she was a little feverish, I thought proper to bleed her, and at the same Time fent her some active, purging Medicines, directly to take after bleeding, to prevent any injury which might arise from revulfing that matter, which might again by fixing, return the complaint. These purges they neglected giving, and her Palfey return'd; the matter offer'd once to collect in her Arm, but did not, fhe grew worse and in about a fortnight dy'd.

After attending her two or three Days, finding no hopes of her Recovery, I told her Husband she would inevitably die; I should give her no more Medicines, for it was out of the Power of any Man to help her, and it would be only picking his Pocket; and so took my leave.

In this Case, as in many more I suffer'd, for they immediately dispatch'd a Messenger with her Urine, to a noted piss Doctor, who was Conjurer enough to say, she had no Palsey, and he'd soon recover her. I think he sent as many infallibles (with which she dy'd) at once, as came to half my Demand, for bleeding, blisters, medicines and Journeys, for better than a Month; for my whole Demand did not amount to twenty Shillings; and in order to prejudice me in my Practice, it was maliciously reported by some Persons, that I took five Pounds of the Man, and did his Wise no service, nay, I did not so much as know her illness; many instances of this kind I could produce, but am now drawing to a conclusion.

When wicked malicious Persons intend to prejudice a Man, whose Bread depends upon his Reputation, they either call him Rogue or Fool; the sirst, I have been often call'd, but never prov'd so; and those, who did not care to prove me a Fool, would have the World think I was a Sot, and unfit to be trusted in my Business; and when that would not do, then I was represented as an extravagant, dear Man, while others would say I had no Medicines.

A certain Neighbour, a Man of excellent parts, and great fagacity, who calls himself Apothecary, Surgeon, Rum and Brandy-Merchant; I don't know whether he fells Cyder, fine Ale, or London Porter, I know he has them all, who has been at the Bottom of all the foul play I have receiv'd in the Country, was the other Day in company with a good fenfible Tradefman in Harborough, which Tradesman, was speaking to this Haberdasher of fmall-Wares, in a kind manner about me, who made Answer; yes, Mason is an ingenious Man, but he is poor; he has nothing but his Lancet to trust to, he has no Medicines; no Medicines! reply'd my Friend; for God's fake, what does he cure People with? for this I know, he has more fuccess than all the Apothecaries in the Country.

My fate, sure of all Men, is most hard; some have been encouraged for understanding their Bufiness; but those sew Abilities, which some have been pleas'd to allow me, have raised a Jealousy among others of the physical Tribe, who have taken all pains to do me hurt: But now I hope it appears, that I am neither Rogue, Fool, Drunkard, nor extravagant; but am very capable of being useful in my Profession, and could I wipe off that hateful odium of Poverty, I shou'd have as few faults as others.

To conclude, my fufferings have been fuch, as no Man befides myfelf ever underwent; for there is no Man, but furely, faw fome happy Days in thirty Years: Befides, I fuffer, and have all along fuffer'd, for what others would have got encouragement; I fuffer for understanding my Business, and being diligent, and honest, (as I hope this whole Relation will prove.)

Therefore may I, after so many fruitless hopes, indulge one hope more; which is, that this narrative of my Life, and Practice, may fall into the Hands of fome good and great, whose charity may incline them to compassionate a Man, who is both able. and willing, to be useful to his fellow Creatures, and make a comfortable provision for himself and Family, and do justice to all the World, and not continue flarving in obscurity: Since that good God, who knows what is best for us all, hath blest me with a good Constitution, a great share of health, with fasting Spirits, supported by the Promises in Scripture; that I shall not be afficted more than I am able to bear, but that I shall either be supported under my Afflictions, or delivered out of them: This Confidence hath greatly enabled me to bear up against such troubles and distresses, as would have broke the Hearts of ten-Thou-

If I have the least claim to encouragement, from my few abilities in my Profession, or if my preffing Distresses, may move the Compassion of the well dispos'd, whereby I may be enabled to prosecute the Business I profess; or should some Gentleman, who has a numerous Family in a Country diffant from Advice, think I should be useful in my own Sphere, and helpful in any other, I would gladly use my utmost endeavours to be of fervice, and could have undeniable Testimonials and Security, if I was but free'd from a Corner, as is my present fate; then all I have suffer'd wou'd feem as nothing, but if I must still continue in mifery and Diffress, as through much tribulation a Man must enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; Since I have not receiv'd much confolation in this World, may I receive it in that World, where it will not be in the Fower of any to take it from me.

As I hope and expect the mercies of a good God, who for wife ends thought fit, perhaps for my correction, and probation, thus to afflict me; I do with unfeigned Sincerity, most heartily thank all, who are, and have been friendly to me; and I do with the same Sincerity, forgive all who have any ways injur'd or distress'd me; and I also ask forgiveness of those, whom I have in any degree injur'd, and hope as I forgive those who have done me any ill, and those to whom I have unknowingly done any, will likewise forgive me. May the great God, who knows the Secrets of all Hearts, pardon and forgive us all, and after the the conclusion of this miserable Life, receive us into that lasting Kingdom of Bliss, whose uninterrupted Joys will never end.

WHEREIN is exhibited the Ætiology, or the Rife and Nature of the most prevalent Distempers, with a plain, rational and concise Method of treating them; setting forth the bad Consequences, arising from the improper Application of such, who often take Symptoms for real Causes, and as often (by opposing Nature when she's endeavouring her own Relief) make tristing Disorders, obstinate, if not fatal Diseases. With a new Hypothesis, concerning the Cure of Apoplexies and Palsies; and of many nervous Complaints, as also the Gout,
